Noncoms Abducted By Cong

Intensive Search Is Underway

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. spokesman announced Saturday night the Viet Cong abducted four U.S. Air Force noncommissioned officers last Sunday and an intensive hunt is under way to recover them. Helicopters and planes scanned the countryside for clues.

The four were reported stopped at a Red roadblock while returning to Saigon from leave in Vung Tau, a seaside resort and military center 45 miles southeast of this city.

The trap was sprung only five or 10 miles from Vung Tau.

Unofficial sources said one of the men had escaped and made his way to a Vietnamese government outpost. This was their story, officially unconfirmed:

The man reported a second American escaped with him, but was later recaptured. The man who reportedly got away was quoted as saying he heard the shout "No, no, no," and then a burst of gunfire.

There was no word on the other two men. Military authorities declined to identify any pending notification of next of kin. All were based at Tan Son Airport in Saigon.

In operational affairs, the spokesman disclosed another American raid on a North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site.

About 15 U.S. Navy jets from the 7th Fleet carrier Oriskany hammered the missile site and a bridge 35 miles east of Hanoi with 35 tons of bombs Friday after conventionl ground fire downed on of the planes in that area.

Other Navy craft and U.S. Air Force planes flew armed route reconnaissance missions north of the border Saturday, gunning for ferry facilities, barges, roads and bridges.

There was no announcment here of any losses in these operations.

Red China's New China News Agency broadcast a Hanoi dispatch declaring that five U.S. aircraft, including a helicopter, were shot down and several of the pilots were captured.

Aground, men of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division probed an extensive Viet Cong tunnel system they uncovered in hills 20 miles north of Saigon.

Briefing officers said the Americans killed at least five Viet Cong and overran an underground medical station in action that cost them light casualties.

The tunnels were head high and several ran as far as 60 feet into the hillsides. Many contained demolition charges left by the guerrillas.

NEW YORK — Pacifists duck from spray of a heckler's fire extinguisher during a protest against U. S. involvement in Viet Nam and the military draft in Union Square here Saturday. Despite the spray, the pacifists succeeded in burning their draft cards in front of 1,500 persons, police and FBI cameras. (UPI)

Many Receive Ribbons And Pins

4-H Recognition Night Is Held In School Auditorium

Last night was 4-H Recognition Night, when 4-H members received ribbons and pins for their achievements during the past year, with special honors given to those with outstanding records.

This annual event was held at the Smith-Cotton High School Auditorium and in addition to the 4-H members, 4-H leaders and others were also recognized.

Several years ago the giving of the "Friend of 4-H" award was started and receiving it this year was Chester Vermaas, 1628 Country Club, Pettis County Conservation Agent. Vermaas well deserves this honor, having done much toward the success of the Outdoorsmen Club as well as helping otherwise whenever called upon.

Presenting this plaque was Mrs. Walter Kraft, chairman of the Pettis County Youth Advisory committee.

Then Mrs. Kraft found herself receiving an award, the 4-H Alumni Award. The presentation was made by Larry Hale, director of the University Extension Center. Mrs. Kraft, who resides on Route 2, Hughesville, has been almost continuously in 4-H programs, first as a member of a 4-H Club and when she outgrew that, as a 4-H leader. She not only has given much time to 4-H but to all phases of rural community interests. Among honors she has received she was recently named "Woman of the Year" by the Pettis County Farm Bureau.

And what about the 4-Hers themselves. The coveted Danforth Awards this year went to Ruth Ann Robb, Prairie Ridge, and Freddie Kraft, Smelser. These were presented by E. L. Birdsong, County Judge of the Eastern District.

Map-Making Satellite Into Oribt

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A map-making satellite named Geos 1 soared into orbit Saturday to take earth's measurements is an experiment that could produce the world's most accurate maps, better pinpoint long-range missile targets and establish guideposts for tracking ment to the moon.

The 385-pound geodetic explorer rode into space atop a towering Delta rocket that rifled away from Cape Kennedy in a rainstorm at 1:39 p.m.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported half an hour later that the payload was circling the globe at altitudes ranging from 700 to 900 miles.

The satellite carried four high-powered flashing lights, laser beam reflectors and three different sets of radio gear designed to learn with an accuracy never before possible where earth has dips and bulges, her center of gravity and distances between far apart places.

Planners involved in sending U.S. astronauts to the moon believe Geos 1 and its successors will help calculate distances between far-flung tracking stations on earth and plot gravitational forces which will be encountered by lunar vehicles. Even a small error in the position of a ground station would be magnified over the quarter-million-mile route to the moon.

Militarily, Geos 1 could more precisely locate possible enemy targets for intercontinental missiles. The data will be correlated with that being received by geodetic satellites launched previously by the Defense Department.

Officials said good signals were being received from Geos 1 as it spun around the earth. They do not plan to activate most of its systems, including the lights, for several days.

After about three days, when the orbital path has been established, a signal from the ground is to extend a 60-foot boom from the top of the satellite. This is to stabilize it so the base with most of the instruments always faces the earth.

Although the flashing lights which can be triggered by ground command, have the illuminating power of a lighthouse, they will not be visible to the naked eye.

Of Apportionment Measure

Senate Panel Has Different Version

BY LARRY HALL
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, (AP) — The Missouri Senate's Apportionment Committee came up Saturday with its version of a House redistricting plan somewhat different from the one passed by the House Wednesday.

The Senate received the committee's recommendations at a brief technical session, clearing the track for full Senate action on it Monday afternoon.

The senate will start work at 1 p.m. Monday, three hours earlier than usual. Sen. John W. Joynt, D-St. Louis, president pro tem, said he hoped the special session's final chores could be completed by Wednesday.

The Senate committee agreed with the House that the membership should remain at the present level, 163 seats. Earlier the Senate had cut the number to 154.

It also agreed the redistricting should be done by a bipartisan commission of 20, appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes from a panel of 40 nominees chosen by 10 congressional district party committees instead of by the state committees—the original Senate version.

The house cut out all provisions relating to senatorial redistricting to give it some bargaining power. The Senate committee restored these sections intact.

It also added a section barring any member of the House or Senate from serving on the redistricting commissions and allowing the commissioners $15 a day compensation plus actual expenses.

The House approved a plan for the commission to draw up a tentative map, then allow time for objections and hearings. The Senate committee struck out these review provisions. It decided the commission's conclusions should be final.

The House also included a provision that would have allowed the House to redistrict itself if a deadlock developed and the commission failed to come up with a reapportionment map.

That was criticized before the Senate committee as an inducement for the House to reapportion itself.

Instead, the Senate committee recommended that if the commission should deadlock, House members would have to run at large. The theory was that this would be enough of a threat to force the commission to act.

Cuba, United States Seal An Agreement On Refugees

Figures Set To Allow Quota; No Cutoff Date

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—The United States and Communist Cuba sealed Saturday an agreement allowing 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans a month to find refuge in this country. The starting deadline is Dec. 1 and there is no cutoff date.

The emphasis will be on reuniting thousands of families.

Officials make no predictions on how many Cubans may leave their homeland under the new pact but the total is expected to run beyond 100,000.

The government puts the number of Cubans who already have taken asylum in the United States at more than 250,000. Before the 1962 Cuban missile crisis halted travel, about 8,000 Cubans were coming in each month.

President Johnson announced the new refugee agreement, negotiated through the Swiss Embassy in Havana as the representative of this country, and said in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Johnson was referring to a speech he made beside the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor in which he quickly took up Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on a sweeping promise to fling open Cuba's gates to any and all wishing to leave.

Castro welshed when it came to actual negotiations.

While the matter is open for further discussions, he wound up by slamming the doors to political prisoners, men of military age and technicians he wants to keep. Differences over this held up the agreement for days.

Furthermore, the U.S. government regards the refugee agreement as no real omen of a general improvement in Cuban-American relations.

The flight of the refugees from Cuba will be literally that. Commercial airliners chartered by the U.S. government will pick them up at the Varadero Airport, 60 miles east of Havana, and land them at Miami, Fla. Some will join the Cuban colony in the Miami area but refugee centers are expected to funnel most of them to other parts of the country.

Generosity 'Threatens' The Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upsurge of popular reaction to recent anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations is threatening to drown the Pentagon in a sea of cookies, fruit cake, books and other things for U.S. servicemen in the war zone.

The generosity is welcomed by the Pentagon which views it as an expression of support for U.S. policies.

But the unsolicited offers from individuals, organizations, schools, business firms and other groups is creating a logistics problem — how to move the stuff, and what to do with it once it arrives in Viet Nam.

Defense officials have been worrying with the problem for days.

They don't want to offend the givers. And yet they would like to channel the generosity in some other direction.

One proposal, endorsed by the U.S. command in Viet Nam, would have communities in the United States adopt some unit in Viet Nam.

Leaders of the community would contact members of the unit, find out what the men really wanted, and attempt to supply their wants. It would be a kind of "buddy system."

The offers to do something for the boys began pouring into the Pentagon about two weeks ago.

Officials said the citizens who wrote in, telegraphed and telephoned obviously were reacting against draft card burners and other demonstrating openly against U.S. involvement.

Literally tons of cookies, hundreds of cases of beer, thousands of books and other items have been offered.

"This could become a tremendous logistics problem," one official said.

"It's primarily a matter of transportation — not only to Viet Nam but distributing the stuff once it gets there."

Officials stressed that in-country movement of supplies in South Viet Nam is not easy because road travel is perilous and the country's one railroad line has been cut.

Thus, supplies generally move within the country by air. There is not much space for mass gifts.

Accusation By Smith

Settlement Plan Ruined By Wilson

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain Saturday of wrecking prospects for a settlement of the Rhodesian independence crisis.

In a letter to London, Smith charged Wilson had renegd on his agreements for a royal commission to seek a solution to Rhodesia's demand for independence from Britain.

Smith claimed Wilson had done this by announcing that the British government will not be bound by the findings of the commission, which would be made up of one Briton, one Rhodesian and the chief of the Rhodesian Supreme Court.

Wilson and Smith agreed to the commission during the British leader's visit to Rhodesia last week.

The commission's task was to determine whether this central African nation of 225,000 whites and 3.8 million blacks wanted independence under the terms of the 1961 constitution. This constitution restricts he political activities of the blacks and gives control to the whites.

Wilson wanted a referendum to get the answer but Smith's all-white government rejected this.

Britain is willing to grant Rhodesia independence but insists on guarantees for eventual majority rule, which would give the blacks control of the government.

Smith's government has threatened a unilateral declaration of independence.

In his message to Wilson, Smith declared:

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door which you have claimed publicly to have opened."

Smith's message caught British officials by surprise. Wilson was in Cardiff, Wales, for the wedding of a niece. He said there he had nothing to say about Smith's message. At 10 Downing St. in London, a spokesman for the prime minister also declined comment.

Some sources in London said, however, they could not see how Smith now could avoid carrying out his threat of declaring independence — a move that could bring world sanctions and boycotts upon Rhodsia.

Sawmill Owner Hurt While Fighting Blaze

NEW BLOOMFIELD, Mo.(AP) —Carl Gastineau, 34, saw his $16,000 sawmill burst into flames Saturday morning and he hurried from his home several hundred yards away to move a 500 - gallong gas tank with a fork lift.

The tank fell from a stand and the lift nudged it into the fire. The tank exploded, spewing flaming gas on Gastineau.

Bystanders beat out the flames in Gastineau's clothing but the fire spread and destroyed the mill and some 2,000 feet of maple lumber stored in the building.

Gastineau was taken to Memorial Hospital in Jefferson City where his condition was reported as satisfactory.

Signs Reds Base Plans On Peace

MOSCOW (AP) — Strong signs are appearing here that Soviet leaders have decided to base their plans for the next five years on an expectation of world peace.

Half a year ago, they were indicating anxiety about the possibility of a general war, emphasizing the need to be ready for it.

Today they still are accusing the United States of aggression in Viet Nam and elsewhere, still blustering about the dangers to peace. But they seem to have decided it is safe to plan on avoiding a major, nuclear war, give or take a few localized conflicts.

As a result, they are concentrating on developing the Soviet Union's civilian economy, both in heavy industry and consumer goods, instead of gearing for defense production.

A decision on the prospects for war or peace had to be made before the Soviet five-year plan for 1966-70 could be written. The country lacks enough resources to prepare for war while trying to modernize its backward agriculture and carry out oft-defaulted promises of better living standards.

So, as the time for drawing up the plan approached, the collective leadership, headed by Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, had to evaluate the international situation.

Last spring it looked bad to them. The United States had begun bombing a Communist country, North Viet Nam. That and other things made Kosygin say that the benefits of defense savings were not possible and that defense must go ahead of consumer goods.

A number of developments might have made the leaders change their minds.

They include the cooling down of a sense of crisis over Viet Nam, the recent setback to Chinese hopes for expanded influence which carried dangers of East-West collisions, and the troubles of the Atlantic alliance with its delay in a multilateral nuclear force.

In September, the Soviet Communist party decided upon changes in economic methods in hopes of making the lagging economy more efficient. But this only put off the basic question of a resource allocation: Must defense get a large slice of the small pie because war might come, or can it be held within reasonable limits while resources are devoted to building up the economy with reformed methods?

Recent speeches indicate the decision has gone to the civilian part of the economy, which itself contains elements competing for investment money.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda has put new emphasis on building Soviet economic strength as the best way to advance the worldwide cause of communism.

Mobile Dental Unit Here

The Missouri State Elks Mobile Dental Unit to be used to treat crippled children who have been unable to receive dental care will arrive in Sedalia this coming Nov. 16, for a stay of a month it was announced today by Ned Lindstrom, Exalted Ruler of the Sedalia Lodge No. 125 BPOE Elks.

This dental service, made possible by the Missouri Elks in cooperation with the Missouri State Medical Association, Missouri Crippled Children's Service, Missouri Dental Association, Missouri Division of Health and Missouri Division of Mental Diseases brings a much-needed service to the crippled children of this area as well as throughout Missouri. The dental needs of the handicapped child are greater than those of normal children. The necessity for maintaining the teeth of the handicapped is especially important since many of these children have congenital deformities such as cleft lip or palate and the remaining teeth are needed to hold the appliances necessary for correcting these defects.

The Public Health Nurse for the Elks Mobile Dental Unit has been in the area during the past two weeks making calls on families of the eligible patients, and explaining the necessary procedures to follow. Several appointments have been made for the crippled children in this area. Only a limited number of patients can be taken care of daily since treatment of a crippled child will take longer than normal children.

The Mobile Dental Unit, costing over $18,000 is thoroughly equipped to care for crippled children and is staffed by a trained dentist, specializing in treatment of crippled children, plus a dental assistant with special training. Lindstrom stated that the objective of this program is to render dental service to manageable handicapped and crippled children not now receiving adequate dental care due to economic reasons, transportation difficulties, lack of dental personnel, or availability of trained dental personnel.

Children from Pettis, Saline & Morgan counties, who are eligible, will be treated at Sedalia.

The Mobile Dental Unit will be located in the alley by the Elks Home.

Killed In Accident

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP)—A man from Olathe, Kan., was killed Saturday in a car that skidded off a curve and hit a tree about eight miles northwest of Joplin.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the victim, Jack Martin Holt, was alone in the car which was going too fast to make the curve on Missouri 171.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 13 who has a 7-year-old sister. Laura is soiled rotten. I have orders not to lay a hand on her because I am older and bigger. But she can kick and punch me whenever she feels like it and she feels like it pretty often.

Laura has learned a stunt to get me into trouble. When she is mad at me she begins to bawl—real loud, so the people in the next block can hear. My dad runs in yelling, "What did you do to Laura?" When I say "Nothing," Laura says, "That's a lie. She hit me." Then I get punished.

I have to do eight household jobs and all Laura has to do is drag a dust rag over a couple of tables. When I complain Mom says, "She's just a little girl," but when I don't want to take her to the movies on Saturday afternoon (I go with my friends), Mom says, "Take her. She's a young lady."

It will be four years and eight months until I can get out of this house and go to college, if I last that long. Tell me what to do until then.—IN MISERY.

Dear In: Little sisters and brothers can be a joy or a pain in the neck, depending on how their parents raise them.

Big kids should not hit little ones and little kids should not hit big ones, either. Older children should do more work but they should also have extra privlleges.

It is wrong to saddle a 13-year-old girl with a 7-year-old sister on a Saturday afternoon. It is also wrong to reward a child for tattling on a brother or sister. The best system is for parents to insist that their kids work out their problems independently and refuse to act as referees.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the mother who is heartbroken because her son is marrying a woman seven years older than he is.

My son was 16 when he fell for a woman who was 26. They went together three years and I cried myself to sleep very night. He kept telling me Jeanette was a wonderful person and he loved her three children as if they were his own. Well, I refused to even meet her.

My son married Jeanette when he was 19 (she was 29). Today, five years later they are the happiest people I know. She is better to me than my own daughters. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?" My own daughters call only when they want me to sit with their kids.

So please tell that mother to cheer up. Her son's older wife may be the best one in the bunch. Mine is.—HAD TO BE SHOWN.

Dear Shown: Your son and Jeanette have beaten the odds and my hat is off to them.

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngster is a victim of hemophilia. Because of his condition he is often covered with bruises and he appears to have black eyes.

Strangers come over and say, "What happened to the child? Was he in an accident?" We don't feel like discussing his condition with strangers. Furthermore we don't want the boy to feel he's abnormal. Yet we must say something. Advise us please.—W. P.

Dear W.P.: It's always difficult to cope with thoughtless people but your first concern should be for the boy. Tell the inquirers the boy has a blood condition. Chop it there. Explain to the child that when people ask questions they are showing interest in him and they don't really mean to be rude.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THIS IS A BATTLEFIELD...

Flares dropped by U.S. planes to help defenders of Plei Me spot Viet Cong attackers at night light up the besieged camp. South Vietnamese troops, Montagnard tribesmen and U.S. Special Forces advisers held out for a week until a relief column broke through to the outpost on the South Vietnamese-Cambodian border.

Food Lures Vietnamese From Hills

TANH LINH, South Viet Nam (AP) — Every day the Viet Cong in the surrounding hills look over this district town 70 miles northeast of Saigon. They obviously didn't like what they saw this week.

The Viet Cong had considered the district their own. They have cut the roads and set up their own administrative organizations.

Of 23,000 people in the district, only 5,000 are under government control. They live in the town of Tanh Linh.

A U.S. Special Forces team of 12 men recently moved to a hilltop outpost along with a few hundred trainees. They, too, overlook part of the district. After they came in, 2,700 refugees followed.

The valley in which Tanh Linh is located is fertile. But Viet Cong activity created serious food shortages for the people who live here and the people who came flocking — Vietnamese, Nungs, Chams and Montagnards.

The Communists warned that they would wipe out the Special Forces detachment. They told the people it would be dangerous to stay in the area with the Americans.

But Thursday U.S. Air Force C123 transport planes came in low and began dropping bundles of foodstuffs by parachute. It was the first consignment of an airlift of 110,000 pounds of wheat, rice, salt, cooking oil and other necessities.

The Americans here, the district chief and the officials who arranged for the food drop hope to push back the Viet Cong, win more people away from them, open the roads and eventually free the district of the guerrilla controls.

The food drops were arranged by CARE and other private welfare agencies working in cooperation with the U.S. Operations Mission.

Capt. Ronald Robinson, 26, Fayetteville, N.C., whose parents live in Berkeley, Calif., conceded that the success of the program may in itself present a problem.

"We figure that more people will come in because of the distribution of food," he said. "This may be a problem in itself, but at the same time it will show we are different from the Viet Cong, who haven't done anything for them."

Viet Nam Casualties Identified Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine soldiers and sailors killed in action in Viet Nam were identified Thursday by the Defense Department.

They include Army Sgt. Ralph W. Onana, husband of Mrs. Paula A. Onana, St. Louis.

The Pentagon also announced that the number of U.S. Servicemen who died in combat in Viet Nam since Jan. 1, 1961, increased by 56 during the week ended last Monday to a new total of 902.

Those who died from combat during the week included Army Spec. 4 Marvin E. Curry, St. Louis, Mo., and Spec. 4 Anthony R. Hardie, Pagedale, Mo.

In Ranks With Area Servicemen

Army Specialist Four Robert D. Kirschner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kirschner, has received his honorable discharge from the Army. He served 18 months in Alaska, and the remainder of his service at Fort Lewis, Wash.

LONDON (AP)—The body of Timothy Evans, whose hanging led to abolition of the death penalty in Britain, will be exhumed and given a Christian burial, the Home Office announced today.

Evans' body will be removed from the exercise yard of London's Pentonville Prison probably next week and delivered to his 66-year-old mother.

Evans was hanged in 1950 after being convicted of killing his infant daughter. He was also charged with killing his wife but was not tried on that count.

Evans contended the killer was John Reginald Halliday Christie, a clerk who shared a two-family house with Evans. Three years after Evans was hanged, Christie was exposed as a mass murderer. He admitted he killed Mrs. Evans but would not admit killing the baby.

A public inquiry into the Evans-Christie case starts Nov. 22 under a high court judge.

LONDON (AP) — A special election shaved the Labor government's majority in the House of Commons to only two votes Thursday but another one Thursday is expected to restore it to three votes.

The Conservative party got its Commons ranks back to 303 when it retained the seat for the cities of London and Westminster, a Tory constituency which had been represented by the speaker of the House, Sir Harry Hylton-Foster. He died Sept. 2.

Conservative John Smith got 15,037 votes, 59.5 per cent of the ballots cast.

The other by - election next week will be in the Laborite stronghold of Erith and Crayford. The holder of the seat from that district, Norman Dodds, died last August.

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP) — The former French and Belgian Congos announced today they have agreed to re-establish diplomatic relations broken in 1963.

A communique issued after a meeting of the two neighbors' foreign ministers said ambassadors will be exchanged and commercial and economic relations will be studied.

Integrated Cake Baffles Police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Officer William L. Pottorff, you are the greatest," said the cake.

And, rhymed the anonymous poem sent with the legend-emblazoned goodie:

"This is for the ticket and your being so kind.

"You've made yourself a friend of mine."

Bemused officers had one slender clue in tracing the identity of the baker: an additional note which read, "To an honest and fair police officer. Take a bite of this beautiful and delicious integrated cake." It was a white cake, with chocolate icing.

Makers See New Record In Holiday Card Sales

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The lamb is lying down with the lion on Christmas cards this year.

There is everything from the usual medieval Madonnas to OP art Christmas stars, with a sprinkling of partridges in pear trees. But peace is the favorite theme shown by greeting card manufacturers.

In the next two months, the manufacturers, museums, photographic supply houses and charity groups expect to sell a record number of cards.

The Greeting Card Association, made up of manufacturers, predicts sales of over three billion cards in the United States.

Shoppers will find selection more difficult than ever, with more than 50,000 designs available.

The 1965 cards are three-dimensional, encrusted with gold foil. They are orange, pink, beige, purple, and sometimes even the traditional red or green.

There are special cards "From Our Parakeet to Yours."

There are cards for the milkman, mailman, doctor, priest, boss, nun, baby sitter and those in mourning. There is Santa on water skiis and Santa driving a golf cart instead of a sleigh.

"We figure the average customer is a housewife, about 35 with two children, living in the suburbs," said Steve Shannon, executive director of the Greeting Cards Association.

"She orders about 200 personalized cards for 15 to 35 cents apiece, and then spends another $10-$12 on special cards for mother and the mailman. Then on impulse, she buys two or three boxes at the last minute."

The association takes what Shannon calls "a discreetly neutral policy" to its chief sales rivals: museums and charity organizations, such as UNICEF, which publishes its own cards to raise funds for the United Nations Children's Fund.

"Who's going to fight a glass of milk for a child in Zanzibar?" he asked, referring to UNICEF, which expects to sell 40 million cards this year.

Last year UNICEF's Christmas card net proceeds were $2.3 million.

Museums sales have been inching up, too, but the museums are close-mouthed about the figures. Many of the museums sell their cards throughout the country.

Sales of photographic cards have skyrocketed since they were introduced in the 1920s. Sales were 110 million in 1962, 125 million in 1963 and 150 million last year.

'Super Jet To Europe,' Sorosis Topic

"Super Jet to Europe" was the topic on which R. M. Brown, T.W.A., Kansas City, spoke, at Sorosis Monday afternoon at Heard Memorial Club House.

Brown told of expectations for the future with jet planes that would take 200 passengers to Europe in two hours and 45 minutes. England, France and the United States are working on such a plane which they hope to have in service by about 1970.

It takes five days to go to Europe by ship, he said, and six hours by plane, but he felt that going one way by ship is a great experience.

He urged that they not oe afraid of a tour because much is missed if, for the first time, people go on their own. The next trip is different, then it is better to go on their own. A three weeks tour of Europe will run about $25 a day. Brown warned against cheap tours, which would cost perhaps $5 a day because of the accomodations and hotel rooms.

A tour, he explained, is not just being herded around with a group of people, tours may be made up for a couple or a single person, if that is desired. There are two places where these tours may be bought wholesale in Kansas City and this is cheaper, for there is no in-betwene. A 21 day excursion rate fare is good, he stated, for three weeks is just about right to see Europe on the first trip.

Brown told of the jet, its safety where three engines could be shut off and it still could go. It has less parts, only 80, which makes it safer. He stated that it needs only one overhaul a year. Only now and then an engine needs to be changed and that takes 35 minutes.

At Bendix now they are working on SCAT which lands the plane by radar, with 180 landings being successfully made there at the air field and with the setting of a course, route and altitude, they have never been more than three quarters of a mile off the pre-set flight by radar, Brown said.

There is less danger of collisions, now, too, he continued because they can tell who they are talking to now, which they couldn't before.

Three pieces of baggage is allowed, weighing 70 pounds, now, Brown said, and explained that it was never the weight they were concerned about but the room to put the luggage.

Brown showed a film on Europe which included interesting and historic places in London, Dublin with its world famous horse Show; Paris, Frankfort and other parts of Germany, Switzerland with its winter sports and Geneva with the League of Nations building which now is where the European offices of United Nations is located; Lisbon, Protugal, with its mosaic sidewalks in black and white; Spain, Italy, Greece, Israel, Egypt and India.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Dick Monsees, current topic department chairman.

Mrs. Joseph Maunders, president, presided at the business meeting.

National Program for Youth for Natural Beauty

Suppose someone would stop at your home and ask you to do something to make America beautiful. What would be your answer? Since we believe you would answer in a positive manner, 4-H members and other youth organizations have been challenged to take leadership in a National Program for Natural Beauty.

At ceremonies launching the nation-wide program in Washington recently the youth were charged to work aggressively for natural beauty.

When you look for new ideas and new approaches, you look to people who are young or to people who think young. If given the chance to do something important and wonderful, it has been proven again and again that young people work miracles. This is why young people are asked to particiapte in this worthwhile program, to give them an opportunity to become a driving force in the war on blight and to regain and retain the beauty that is America before it slips through our fingers and is lost.

To participate in the 4 - H Community Beautification project and to be a part of the National Program of Youth for Natural Beauty, you can take part in many ways; as individual, as member of your 4-H club, or as a young citizen of your community. To give you an example of what some of our 4-H clubs are doing in Missouri; One club is contributing to their new church by cleaning up after the builders finish and landscaping the grounds. They are planting flowers, placing trash cans, and beautifying the grounds. Another club accepted the responsibility of a wildlife conservation plot.

Individual action is needed for beautifying private properties. Here are some things that can be done:

Carry out a clean-up program on your home grounds.

Maintain your yard by raking the leaves, weeding, and keeping the lawn mowed and trees and shrubs properly trimmed.

Plant a flower garden combining flowering shrubs, annuals and perinnials.

Keep flower beds free of weeds and adequately watered.

With your parents, plan a program for beautifying your home and grounds over a period of years including painting, fence repair, landscaping, and side walks and driveways in good repair.

Cut down unsightly weeds and brush along the highway near your home, and keep family recreation areas clean and attractive.

Here are some suggestions for community campaigns:

Plant more shade trees along the street, community rose garden landscaping and painting of grounds surrounding public and semi-public buildings, improvement of parks including anti-litter signs, beautification of highway entrances to the community, rural mail box improvement, beautification of farm drive ways, outdoor fireplace in the community picnic area and many other things.

Remember that the action that you take will affect the beauty around your home, your community, the state of Missouri, and our nation.

Houstonia 4-H Club Headed By Suzanne Smiley

Suzanne Smily was installed president of Houstonia 4-H Club in October at R-V School.

Candlelight ceremony was conducted by Mrs. Wilbert Fischer, who also installed: Pat Wood, vice president; Marcia Fricke, secretary; Paula Fischer, treasurer; Valerie Grant, game leader; Cindy Wicker, song leader; Kathy Alexander, reporter; Mrs. Charles Wicker, community leader; Mrs. Everett Blackburn, assistant community leader.

Dr. Robert Boatright spoke about artificial respiration and showed a film. Members tested mouth to mouth artificial respiration with a manikin.

Adventures in Sewing demonstrations were given by Debbie Wood and Peggy Baker. Kathy Alexander led songs.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. John Bales and Mrs. Harry Baker.

Scholarship Program For Legion Ladies

The Pettis County American Legion Auxiliary Unit 16, met Nov. 1, at the Legion building at which Mrs. E. Glenn Lewis, scholarship chairman, spoke on the booklet, "Need a lift," published by the American Legion Education and Scholarship program.

These booklets, she said, are being placed in the local high school libraries.

The auxiliary has scholarships at the department level, National Presidents Scholarships. Miss Deborah Humphrey was the winner in 1965 to a college of her choice.

Voted on was the departments rehabilitation program. This contribution is made each year. Most of the programs were raised 50 per cent, with the ordering of 5,000 poppies this year. These poppies are made by disabled veterans in hospitals.

On Sept. 24, the Seventh District honored the department president, Mrs. Henry J. Sulkowski, Florissant at a birthday party at the Old Missouri Homestead on which a report was given. Guests were: Mrs. Walter Stalte, Chesterfield, department second vice-president; Mrs. Euard D. Brown, Springfield, department chaplain; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Slicker, Jefferson City, Mrs. Slicker being the department secretary; Henry Sulkowski, Mrs. Oswald Ostoff, Wellington, department child welfare chairman; Mrs. Russell Neiler, Green Ridge; Members of the 19 units and Legion members of the 7th District; Mrs. Ethel Jones, Glasgow, 7th District president acted as mistress of ceremonies. Russell Miller sang several songs during the evening.

The following Sunday Unit 16 was host to the 7th District meeting with 14 of the 19 units participating. Mrs. Ralph Rinehart Linneus, wife of Department 2nd vice-commander spoke of the National Convention held in Portland, Ore.

The next district meeting will be Jan. 16, at 1 p. m. at Marshall at which will be the oratorical contest at the district level.

Mrs. Edwin Vahrenburg was chairman of the dinner following the meeting.

Meteorites As Life Giver On Earth

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Life on earth may be an import from outer space — an organic compound that rode onto the barren planet on a meteorite.

So says a scientist who became intrigued with the distribution of chemical elements in meteorites 27 years ago and has been studying meteorites ever since.

"We have found meteorites to contain organic compounds," said Dr. Brian Mason, 48, of the United States National Museum in Washington. "Are these evidence that there is living matter in outer space?

"I believe that they are nonbiological in origin and that they are not the product of life — but that they may be the precursors of life on earth. It may be a meteorite that brought the material by which life could start."

Dr. Mason gave the presidential address at the meeting of the Geochemical Society Thursday in conjunction with the annual convention of the Geological Society of America. Some 3,000 geologists and geology-related scientists are attending the 8-day meeting that ends tomorrow.

In a paper Thursday, a Harvard University botanist — Dr. Elso Barghoorn — disclosed recently proven findings that show that bacteria-like organisms existed on earth more than three billion years ago. That's the earliest date ever placed on living matter on our 4 ½ billion-year-old planet. Another scientist, from Dartmouth College, told of proving that animal remains found earlier this year are at least 720 million years old — 120 million years older than any previously proven findings.

Most of the meteorites that pelt the earth at the rate of 500 or more a year may be space wanderers that never got together to form a planet, Dr. Mason said. They come from the astroid belt between Mars and Jupiter.

"The astroid belt, rather than being a broken-up planet as some believe, contains pieces that never joined," Dr. Mason said.

"The meteorites aren't very different from what we have on earth. The main difference is that they contain free nickel iron which just doesn't exist in earth rock.

"We found a chemical — silicon oxynitride — which shows there must be nitrogen in some form in space. Some meteorites are formed under conditions similar to a blast furnace. Others show compounds containing water and I think there is a lot of water in the solar system."

Meteorites show what can be found in outer space "if we can learn to interpret everything correctly," Dr. Mason said. "We can read out what sort of conditions are there and what we can expect when we send men out."

One source of regret to Dr. Mason is the poor rate of recovery of meteorites.

"Of the 500 that fall every year, only 150 fall on land. We are fortunate if we can recover 10 of those. There have been none in the United State since Sept. 10, 1961.

"These are space samples we are getting for free," he said wistfully. "If we could only get more."

Forsee Is Honored At A Dinner

Joe Forsee, who for the past eleven years has been circulation manager of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital, and who has now accepted a position as circulation manager of the St. Joseph News and Gazette, was honored Thursday evening with a dinner at Holiday Inn by officers and co-workers of the Democrat-Capital.

A gift of luggage from all of the employees of the company was presented by K. U. Love, president, to Forsee, and Mrs. Forsee wore a corsage and Forsee a boutonniere, that were also gifts of the employees.

Lane's Magic Blends With Tigers Defensive Platoon For 20-7 Win

BOULDER — Missouri halfback Earl Denny (45) goes around his left end and is met by a flying tackle thrown by Colorado's Kerry Mottl (61). Denny picked up 1 yard to the Colorado 32 on the 1st period play. Missouri won 20-7. (UPI)

MU's Tigers Nail Down Second Place In Big 8

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Missouri's Gary Lane blended his quarterback magic with the Tigers' sturdy defensive platoon for a 20-7 Big Eight football victory over Colorado Saturday, nailing down second place in the conference and a possible bowl bid.

Lane, faking and running or passing on the plays that produced two touchdowns, capped his performance with a 16-yard scoring run midway of the fourth quarter.

Earlier the ninth-ranked Missouri's defenders stole one pass for a touchdown and killed two Colorado scoring threats with goal-line interceptions.

Two minutes after Colorado received the opening kickoff Missouri struck for a quick touchdown on Ken Boston's 38-yard interception run.

The Buffs pulled even at 7-7 with an 80-yard touchdown march in the first five minutes of the second quarter. Estes Banks slammed over left guard for the TD.

Missouri regained the lead 13-7 on an 80-yard drive capped by Lane's two-yard pass to Earl Denny in the end zone. Dick Bernsen's point after touchdown kick was low.

Way Back When...

By Pete Daniels

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, some old - time Sedalia baseball players were dusting off their spikes while about 34 area farmers were hauling ten-gallon milk cans loaded with fish back to the farm pond. The date was Oct. 1, 1950.

The big item of interest in local sports that day, however, concerned Ralph Walker, who had been signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Walker, a mainstay for the Sedalia Ban Johnson Chiefs, played first base and did some shortstop work for the "Whiz Kids" in those days. He started his local baseball career in Junior Legion circles here and graduated to BJ action shortly after. He was signed in 1950 by Dodger Scout Andy High, and was scheduled to travel to Sheboygan, Wis., for spring training the next year. Ralph is now associated with the Walker Publishing Co., here.

THOSE "OLD TIMERS" we mentioned earlier got a challenge that year from the Sedalia Teen-Age Blues to play an exhibition tilt here. The Blues were made up of Bill Watson, Charles Vaught, Wiley Walter, Joe Fischer, Donnie Higgins, Eldon Lees, C. A. Smith, Bruce Wall, Joe Walter and John Higgins.

The "old timers" they invited to play were "Slick" Thomas, John Dirch, "Doc" Snavely, Dorsey Walter, Harvey Fischer, Etts Lane, Huck Harlan, Junior Brown, Carl Bennett, Ralph Smith, Red Thomas, Harold Ryan, Junior Ream, Dayne Walters, Jack Alpert, Merle Steele, Harry Hatfield, Leon White, Nelson White, Claude White, Vernon Ditton, Bud Hayden, Barnie Sullivan, Lee Younce, Raymond Schultz, Vincent Siegal, Sam Watson, Davey Jones, Charlie Poynter, Andy Kramer, Fred Pheiffer, Hershel Sumners and Jack Pierce. Sounds almost as if half of Sedalia was set to head for the diamond.

The reason the "old timers" outnumbered the Blues so heavily, supposition has it, is that the elders were asked to try to play at least a half-inning, if no more. Just how many made it that far is open for conjecture.

WHILE ALL THIS was going on, 34 local ponds were to get the benefit of a new stock of fish from the Conservation Agency that year. The ponds, all in the Sedalia area, had met with the specifications of the Agency, and largemouth black bass and bluegill sunfish were being provided.

Owners of the ponds were to meet at the junction of Highways 65 and 50 in Sedalia to pick up the fish. Only six of the 34 loads of fish weren't picked up. Those that were, however, made the trip back to the pond in ten-gallon milk cans. Even a fish could complain about travelling in that fashion!

Bulldogs Take Cage Game 67-56

Leeton's Bulldogs got ahead of their record Friday night when they ousted the Montrose Bluejays 67-56 in a non-conference basketball contest at Leeton.

Leeton jumped to a ten-point lead in the first quarter and added seven more to that in the second for a half-time lead of 38-21.

Montrose's biggest rally of the game came in the final quarter and netted 19 points, seven more then Leeton collected that period, but not enough to make up the earlier deficit.

Leeton's top performer of the evening was Jerry Wheatley, who dropped in 33 points on 13 field goals and seven free throws.

B-team play saw Leeton oust Montrose 51-46 on O'Neill's 15 points. Top gun for Montrose was Buhr with 25.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

ONCE in a while this column does get away from out-and-out sports and this is one time in part. It is regarding a letter received by James F. Dickman of the Hamm's Sales Co., from a former Sedalian, 1st Lt. Richard R. Sklar II, officer in the 101st Airborne Division in Viet Nam, recently. It was in reference with several hundred can openers Dickman had sent to the Division, and it certainly reflects the feelings of men under his command.

The letter in part is as follows:

"From the men of Company A, 1st Battalion (Airborne) x x x 101st Airborne Division, I send you thanks! The can openers you so graciously sent us were greatly appreciated. It is seldom that our troops are able to get either beer or soft drinks here and when they do become available there was no way to open the can except with a knife — that is until you sent us the '- - - - - KEYS'

"Your gesture not only enabled the men of "A" Company to open their canned drinks in a manner customary to them, but also raised their morale considerable by knowing that someone in the United States thought enough of them to do such a fine thing. Many of them here have become very disenheartened over acts committed in the United States regarding "draft dodging" pacifists and demonstrations against the war in Viet Nam.

"The war here is not a pretty one and there are no "Front Lines," consequently the individual soldier can never relax. He must be constantly alert and ready for anything that might happen. I tell you this just to re-emphasize the soldier's status, thus showing you how much your generosity meant to him.

Thank You Again !
Richard R. Sklar II,
1st Lt. Infantry."

What makes this more of a coincidence is the fact that Lt. Sklar is a former Sedalia writing to a Sedalian and the fact the openers went to his company unbeknown to Dickman that any Sedalian was assigned to this outfit. Dickman was more than surprised to receive the letter especially knowing Sklar's father, Dick Sklar, now residing in Kansas City.

His letter, like thousands of others from the Viet Nam area, gives the thinking of the men who are serving their country while these whippersnappers in this country are being given the protection of safety by these fighting men.

Incidentally, Dickman was a little shy in releasing the letter, but I talked him out of it. I thought Sedalians should read some about Sedalians.

BACK to sports. Here it is we are just moving close to the end of the football season with basketball already overlapping and now we start to hear about baseball. This past week we learned George W. Ray has again been appointed Missouri State Commissioner of the National Baseball Congress. He was one of the 28 named this past week by President Ray Dumont.

Ray will supervise the annual Missouri State Non-Pro baseball turnament which has been held in Sedalia for the past number of years at Liberty Park. Winners of the tournament attend the annual National Tournament played at Wichita, Kan., starting this year on Aug. 12.

Commissioner Ray has not planned his 1966 tournament dates, but indicated they will conform with previous years, starting the latter part of July with completion the first week in August, giving ample time for the champions to prepare for the trip to the national.

This will be the 32nd annual turnament of the NBC at Wichita.

—o—

REMEMBER back in the thirties when the Smith-Cotton high school and the old Sedalia high school football teams were the winners in the Big Seven Conference rather consistantly and it finally broke up the circuit when other teams didn't care too much about meeting the Sedalians. Well it seems there is a feeling the Central Missouri Conference is about to meet the same fate, not because of Jefferson City either. This time it appears to be the travel problem.

The rumor mill now has it that Hannibal is looking forward to dropping out and joining the NEMO circuit, much closer to home. It's a long travel for the Pirates down to Sedalia and to Rolla, as well as it is for those teams up to Hannibal every other year.

But with the highways improving year-to-year it should not make much difference, and I can't see why Hannibal wants to withdraw, they have had their year in the Conference—it's been a long time, just like it has been for Sedalia. But we like the Hannibal teams and hope something can be done to salvage the CMC.

Also it has been rumored Rolla wants to get out, this too I would hate to see. Rolla has had their problems just like Smith-Cotton, but it is a good school, and our meetings have not been too bad with them.

Some indications are also in the air that down in Springfield, the Springfield high schools are not happy and would like to join up with other conferences. This would, if Columbia, Sedalia, Mexico and Jefferson City stuck together, cause some travel problem, but if a couple of those teams did come into the CMC circuit, it would make a terrific high school football league down through the State. The distance would not be quiet as far from Columbia to Springfield as it is from Sedalia to Hannibal, or Rolla to Hannibal, in fact I figure it would not be more than five to 10 miles give or take a mile for Columbia to travel to Springfield, and over some right fair highways.

Needless to say every few years these rumors start and sometimes become a reality, and oft times the problem settles itself and the circuits continue on for a few more years.

Scheduling of football games for high schools has becme a problem and if the member teams can work out their problems they have not the difficulties of filling in their non-conference schedule as if they are out on an independent schedule of games.

The association with the other CMC schools has been good, as good as it could be if reorganized, and it's hard to believe there is any feeling of a school against another school to raise a question of disbanding the conference.

You cannot, on the other hand, blame a school for wanting to get into a conference which they feel they can have a better chance of producing a winning team. However, as far as Smith-Cotton is concerned, I don't think they would like to see the circuit broken up—if anything made a couple of teams bigger. There are only six teams in the conference now, Fulton used to belong and so did Kemper MA, but they dropped out. Mexico MA dropped out, and Rolla came in.

But a travel problem is something, but regardless of what happens there will always be the problem of travel and I doubt very much if any of our Missouri high schools will take to the air to solve it.

Here's hoping we can hold the CMC together for a few more years at least.

Calhoun Defeats Deepwater

The Calhoun Eagles are off on another long line of victories, adding Deepwater's Demons to their list of victims Friday night, 56-35, in non-conference basketball action at Calhoun.

The Eagles completely outclassed Deepwater, holding the Demons to six points in the first quarter and 11 in the second for a 31-20 lead at the half.

Deepwater, trying to duplicate its performance in the second quarter, got ten points on the scoreboard in the third quarter, but Calhoun again bettered that performance.

Bill Parks sparked Calhoun's drive with 16 points, followed by Mark Motsinger's 14. Top man for Deepwater was Lozaw, who scored 16 on seven field goals and two charity tosses. No one else on his team matched that.

B-team results placed Calhoun over Deepwater, 45-32, with Kent Summer leading Calhoun with 26 points. High for Deepwater was Simmons with seven.

The Eagles next play against Leeton's Bulldogs, who whipped Montrose 67-56 Friday night.

Mustangs, Wildcats Are 1-2 Teams In Tournament

The Northwest Mustangs and Warsaw's Wildcats are the 1-2 teams in the PBCAA Conference Basketball Tournament at Cole Camp, which gets underway Monday and runs through Saturday.

The Mustangs, by virtue of anticipated team strength, are the expected winners of play, even though they will get their first taste of competition in the tournament this year, which puts them at a slight disadvantage since other teams have played at least one game already.

In Monday's opening action, Smithton's Tigers meet Lincoln's Cardinals at 7 p. m. Last Tuesday, in a game against Stover's Bulldogs, who had played two games previously, the untested Tigers went down 60-50 in a tough battle.

On the same night, Lincoln's Cardinals lost to Leeton in a surprise outcome, 67-50. Lincoln's top man on the scoreboard was Duane Brandsgaard with 19 points, no match for Leeton's John White, who whipped 35 tallies through the hoop.

The second game Monday pits third-seeded Cole Camp against the sixth-seeded Sacred Heart Gremlins. The Bluebrids lost a heart-breaker to Calhoun's Eagles earlier this season, 52-51, after holding a three-point edge at half-time.

Sacred Heart, a day later, gave Bunceton's powerful Dragons the worst trouncing they have had in many a game, 74-49. Ron Kruse spearheaded the Gremlin attack with 22 points, ten of them coming in the third quarter. Sacred Heart and Bunceton were tied at the half, but the Grems pulled the game out of the fire with 28 points in the third and 22 in the final quarter.

On Tuesday, Northwest will meet Green Ridge in what promises to be a lop-sided contest unless the Tigers can pull a real surprise. In their season-opener, the Tigers lost to Calhoun 65-24.

The second game Tuesday pits Warsaw against LaMonte at 9:30 p. m. The Wildcats, who kicked the season off last Tuesday, smashed Osceola 81-50 in non-league action that day.

The real battle of the tournament, should Warsaw and Northwest meet, could well forecast the outcome of the outcome of the PBCAA title race this season.

Seedings in the tournament are: Northwest, Warsaw, Cole Camp, Smithton, Lincoln, Sacred Heart, LaMonte and Green Ridge in that order.

Warsaw Moves Ahead

Green Ridge Loses 66-64

Warsaw took another step ahead Friday and the Green Ridge Tigers lost a heart-breaker in an overtime battle as PBCAA affiliated schools in the area saw non-league action Friday night.

The victory gives the Wildcats a strong boost in the 1965-66 basketball picture, and Green Ridge gave solid indication that the Tigers, when the going gets rough, are able to stay in the game to the end. In most overtime situations, the two-point margin can go either way.

Even though nothing definite was established by the outcome of the game, the Tigers did give indication that their team strength is much more solid this year than it was last.

Two other schools in the PBCAA saw non-conference play Friday night, but results were not available. They were Northwest and Lincoln.

Warsaw 68, Skyline 61

Warsaw got a run for its money from Skyline, but pulled out of the game with a 68-61 victory after giving Skyline two points on a goal-tending charge. Warsaw's worst moments came from Skyline's Edge, who whipped 13 field goals and nine free throws the bucket for 35 points.

The Wildcats, leading 36-29 at the half, got some rough opposition in the third and fourth quarters, but stayed in the game long enough to win. Top gun for the 'Cats was Bob Barnes who hit the bucket for eight from the field and seven from the charity stripe for 23 points.

The B-game saw Skyine oust Warsaw 55-43 with Donley taking team scoring honoers with 25 points. High for Warsaw was Sam Henderson with 19

Score by quarters:

Warsaw	19	17	13	19—68
Skyline	11	18	15	17—61

Individual scoring: Warsaw—Tom Shepardson, 5-1-11; Bob Barnes, 8-7-23; Don Cothers, 2-2-6; Bob Barb, 4-3-11; Jerry Day, 5-3-13; James Miller, 1-0-2; Arley Turner, 1-0-2. Skyline — McRitchen, 0-1-1; Hook, 2-1-5; Low, 1-1-3; Edge, 13-9-35; Cooke, 3-4-10; Owsley, 2-1-5.

Green Ridge 64, Otterville 66

Otterville dominated the court in the first quarter but the Tigers gathered up enough steam to send the game into an overtime before Otterville finally won it by two points.

Jim Dove and Steve Ray paced the Green Ridge attack with 19 and 16 points respectively in one of the toughest drives the Tigers have put on yet. Top gun for Otterville was Landreth with 21.

Green Ridge got a small measure of revenge in the B-game, ousting Otterville 40-36.

Otterville	13	14	16	16—66
Green Ridge	10	13	20	16—64

Individual scoring: Otterville — Landreth, 10-1-21; King, 1-1-3; Bell, 6-2-14; Miller, 1-0-2, Wallenburn, 6-2-14; Dietendorf, 3-2-8; Marcum, 1-2-4. Maryville Downs Cape 12-7 With 3½ Minutes Left

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—Quarterback Leo Papas and Bob Albanese teamed for a 72-yard touchdown pass play with 3½ minutes left to give Maryville State a 12-7 football victory over Cape Girardeau State.

The triumph moved Maryville into a second place tie with Springfield, each with 3-1 marks in the MIAAM Kirksville, 4-0, beat Springfield, 28-0.

A blocked punt at the Maryville 37 set up the winning play.

Cape fumbled away a change to increase a 7-6 lead on the Maryville 6 in the final period. Its last chance ended with 1:21 remaining when Sam Ratcliffe intercepted a Cape pass thrown from the Maryville 19.

Another intercepted pass by Lonnie Hayes set up Maryville's first score in the second quarter. Jim Blankenship ran 36 yards for the talley.

A fumble led to Cape's score in the first period. Irv Whitehead taking in from the 19.

Strong Kansas City Team Defeats Sedalians, 27-7

Tigers See Score In 3rd Quarter

De La Salle, top-ranked team in Kansas City, whipped the Smith-Cotton Tigers 27-7 in a football game that saw the Tigers come up with a show of strength in the third quarter Saturday.

The loss gave the Tigers a 5-3 record for the season.

Smith - Cotton's only touchdown of the game came in the third quarter after De La Salle kicked off to the Sedalians. Jim Arnest, S-C halfback, took the ball on his own 12 and advanced to the 37. On the first play, Smith-Cotton picked up 28 yards, moving the pigskin to De La Salle's 35.

The Bengals picked up a first down, moving the ball to Kansas City's 25 yard line, and in the next three plays gained five yards.

In the fourth play, Sedalia quarterback Russ Cusick passed to Jim Vinson who travelled 20 yards to collect S-C's only score of the game. Bill Herrick kicked the extra point.

Both of De La Salle's first half touchdowns came in the first quarter of the game after they elected to receive. DLS fullback Mike Beach took the kick-off on his own 20 yard line and added seven.

Then, on the second play of the game, DLS left halfback Don Davis took the ball, went around Smith-Cotton's left end and galloped 73 yards for the TD. Terry Bidnick tried to kick the extra point, but the ball was deflected by Smith-Cotton.

De La Salle kicked off and Smith-Cotton took the ball on its own 40 yard line. The Sedalians picked up seven yards before Bill Herrick punted to De La Salle's Dave Rebori, who fumbled.

The Tigers covered the fumble on De La Salle's 12 yard line and for a while it looked as if the Bengals were set to tie the game. However, on their first play, the Tigers lost the ball on Don Wright's fumble, which was recovered by De La Salle on its own ten yard stripe.

De La Salle picked up two first downs and then marched four yards to put the ball on their own 37. Once again, De La Salle's speedy halfback Don Davis took the pigskin and went through the Tiger line for 63 yards and the second Kansas City score.

Bidnick kicked the point after, giving De La Salle a 13-0 half-time margin over the Bengals. Neither team was able to approach the goal line in the second quarter of the game.

After scoring twice in the first quarter, DLS scored once in the third and again in the fourth. The third quarter score followed Sedalia's kick - off, which De La Salle took on its own 37. On three first downs, they had the ball on Smith-Cotton's 25 and two plays later had moved it to the 18. Don Davis, who also sparked first half play for De La Salle, scooted 18 yards around his right end for the touchdown. Terry Bidnick kicked the extra point.

The quarter ended with De La Salle, after moving the ball from their 40, in possession on Smith-Cotton's 18. Then, in the fourth period, with the ball on the 18, De La Salle ,on a first down, moved the pigskin to S-C's eight. Four plays later Dave Rebori, DLS quarterback, plunged one yard for the final TD. Bidnick kicked, but an offsides against Smith-Cotton cost five yards on the play. Bidnick got another opportunity to kick and made it good for the final point.

Kirksville Virtually Cinches MIAA Title

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The Kirksville Bulldogs took a virtual stranglehold on the MIAA football championship Saturday by beating the Springfield Bears 28-0.

Kirksville is 4-0 in the league and Springfield 3-1.

Springfield matched Kirksville matched Kirksville drive-for-drive on offense, but always failed to cross the goalline.

Kirksvile scored on three long plays. Rich Gorzynski had touchdown pass plays of 76 yards to Clifton Ray and 57 and 2 yards to John Newcomb, and Sharron Washington went off tackle 83 yards for the other score.

In the first half Springfield reached Kirksville's 15, 16, 14 and 32 yard lines, and in the third period drove to the 6.

Ox Joins Lee Henning For His First Tag-Team Event

Wrestling's giant Ox, a massive 320-pounder, has been all-conquering in one against one action, allowing no challenger to extend him past 10 minutes.

Just how well the big fellow will fare in team warring will come to light Tuesday when he joins with Lee Henning to oppose the rowdy Stomper in a Convention Hall showdown.

Problem of defeating the Ox is one that none has solved to date, simply because he is so big and seemingly indestructable, that he can't be thrown. Meanwhile, he toys with opponents while they wear themselves out trying to overpower him.

This heft figures to help his side in the meeting with Tuesday's foes. If the Stomper can't pin his man, at least he hopes to leave his mark on him and it's a sure bet the 265-pounder will attempt to make headway at the expense of the Ox.

It is further possible that both the Stomper and Brown will double-team the giant in an effort to bring him down. Henning, of course, isn't expected to sit by idly and let this happen.

Besides the team event, lively action is expected when two young rivals — Bobby Shane and Victor Rivera—come to grips. Shane is the 20-year-old St. Louis sensation who has been impressive in area wrestling the last few weeks. Rivera, reputedly one of the fastest of the Puerto Rian heavyweights, will be making his Sedalia debut.

Other events match the Stomper and the Ox, Henning and Brown.

Heavyweight Thor Hagen will be on hand to referee the card.

Vermaas To Speak And Show Film Mon.

Chester Vermass, Pettis County Conservation Agent, will be the speaker and show the film "White-tail Buck" at a meeting to be held at 8 p. m. Monday, Nov. 8, at the Pettis County Court House. This meeting, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the Rawhide Rifle and Pistol Club and is open to the public.

Since Nov. 15 is the opening of the deer season the club believed it would be well to present the information to hunters that they might better understand the deer.

Also Bob Bishop, club instructor, will give a talk on gun handling and safety precautions.

K-State Rally Fails To Pay Off Saturday

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Cincinnati jumped to a big lead on the running of 210-pound Bill Bailey and held off a spirited Kansas State comeback led by Sophomore quarterback Mike White for a 21-14 victory here Saturday.

Cincinnati seemed headed for an easy victory when Bailey's 80-yard touchdown run midway in the second quarter made it 21-3, but the 162-pound White led a 64-yard drive from the second half kickoff with a 46-yard run. K-State was stopped but Jerry Cook kicked a 27-yard field goal.

The fired-up Wildcats quickly got the ball back and drove 66 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown with White hitting two passes and Henry Howard and Charlie Cottle making good yardage.

Cottle scored from the two and White's two-point pass to End Rick Balducci made it 21-14. Kansas State had two more chances on a fumble recovery by Willie Jones and pass interception by Vince Borota at the Bearcat 42 and 25, respectively.

But the Bearcat defense stopped them cold both times.

The swift hard-running Bailey, who leads the Missouri Valley conference in rushing, ripped 131 yards in 17 carries. White led the losers with 58 rushing and 94 passing.

The victory evened Cincinnati's season reacod at 4-4. K-State is 0-8.

Kansas State lost a fumble on its own 28 on the game's first play, stopped Cincy at the four, but lost another fumble at the six. This time Mike Misik scored on a sweep.

Quarterback Mike Flaherty directed a 77-yard drive for a 14-0 Cincy lead and passed two yards to End Jack McGinegle for the TD.

Retail Clerks Begin Going Back To Work

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Retail clerks began returning to work at major grocery chain stores Saturday in response to a circuit court order temporarily enjoining their union from acting in concert with the meat cutters who have been off their jobs for nearly a month.

The retail clerks' union represents about 2,400 employes of four chains, Milgram's A & P, Safeway and Kroger.

One chain spokesman reported:

"We're getting a good number back and they're still coming."

The circuit court order restrained the union from directing its members not to cross the meat cutters' picket lines. The clerks had refused to cross the lines of the meat cutters, who went on strike Oct. 11.

Nebraska Overpowers Kansans

Halfback Ron Kirkland, back in prime condition after recovering from shoulder injuries, accounted for 146 yards on 10 carries in the first half alone.

Kansas was held to 144 rushing yards and 60 passing yards.

The lone Jayhawk touchdown was scored with 27 seconds remaining of the first half. Has Great Horned Owl For A Pet

Dennis Bignell, who resides seven miles north of LaMonte, has a rather unusual pet, a great horned owl.

Bignell found the owl about two years ago, after it had apparently fallen out of a nest. He fed it mice, corn and meat until it was grown and turned it loose about a year ago. After a six-month absence, the owl recently returned to Bignell's home.

The large bird appears quite tame as it perches on Bignell's arm. The boy says the bird is ticklish, which appears to be true. It will also chew gently on Bignell's finger, however, it seems to be less gentle with other people's fingers.

The owl, which is common throughout North and South America, is brown and white speckled, giving him his name, "Speckled." The bird's wingspan is almost two feet.

Bignell said that he turned the owl loose at night, but it always returned the next morning

In Canadian Election

Pearson's Liberals Lead Diefenbaker Conservatives

OTTAWA (AP) —Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson's Liberal party seems to be in a strong position in French-Canada despite an intensive bid by Conservative leader John G. Diefenbaker for support in Monday's election.

Several political experts predict the Liberals will do at least as well in Quebec as they did in 1963 when they took 48 of the big province's 75 seats in the House of Commons. Some predict the Liberals may even pick up a few of the 13 seats held by Real Caouette's Creditistes, a minor party in Parliament.

Conservative leaders have predicted their men will win as many as 25 seats in Quebec, but the experts say they will be lucky to hold the 7 seats they now have.

Liberal strength is expected to stem mainly from two major steps taken by the Pearson government over Diefenbaker's opposition. These were:

—Estabilishment of a royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism to study ways of improving relations between French-speaking Canada and the remainder of the country.

—Adoption of a new maple leaf flag to replace the red ensign, which many French Canadians regarded as a symbol of English Canada.

Both Pearson and Diefenbaker have insisted that Canadian unity is the major issue facing the country, but there has been no genuine debate on it in the sense that new plans or proposals were advanced. The debate has consisted mainly of charges that each candidate is dividing the country.

Diefenbaker, for example has charged that Pearson stands for two Canadas. "A Liberal vote," he says, "would mean the end of a Canada in which citizens of all origins would stand as equals."

One of Quebec's leading Liberals, Jean Marchand, has accused Diefenbaker of trying to set English and French Canada against each other.

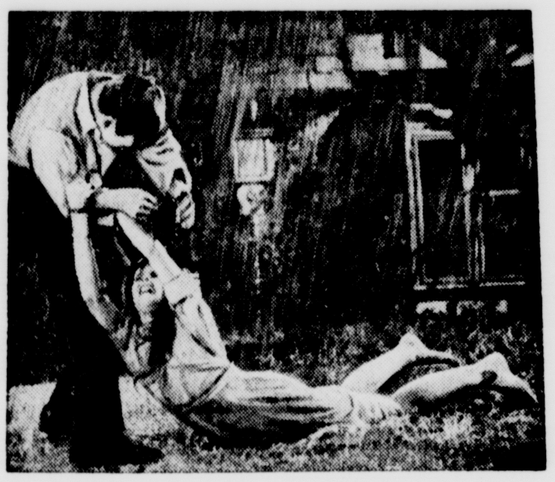

"It is obvious," he said, "that for Mr. Diefenbaker, national unity would consist of a federal government which crushed the provinces, and a country with only one language."

The only concrete suggestion advanced during the campaign was a suggestion by Diefenbaker for a nationwide conference of constitutional changes. But Quebec's Liberal premier, Jean Lesage, declared the time was not ripe for such a conference because of a widespread feeling in English Canada that the French should be assimilated as part of an English-speaking Canada.

WELCOME VISITOR — Placing a garland of flowers on its head, East Indian homemaker expresses feeling of honor to have a sacred cow come into her house in a scene from American International's thrill-filled "Taboos of the World" opening Wednesday at the 50-Drive-In Treatre.

'Peter Pan' Again Will Be Shown

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Martin's "Peter Pan" will be broadcast for the fifth time on NBC on Jan. 21, the network announced today. The two-hour production is one of an elite group of television classics of a quality so fine and with such universal appeal that they can be used again and again.

In terms of network television's fantastic output—some 71 hours a week in prime evening time alone—it is surprising that so few programs have achieved impressive stature.

NBC's "Amahl and the Night Visitors," the opera written by Gian Carlo Menotti for television, has been presented at Christmas time for the past 16 years, which certainly qualifies it as the medium's top classic.

Then, too, there is CBS' "Wizard of Oz," which will be repeated for the eighth consecutive year on Jan. 9. That 30-year-old motion picture starring Judy Garland when she was a little girl can only qualify as an adopted television classic since it first had a long and glorious career in theatres.

"Peter Pan" based on Miss Martin's hit Broadway musical was a live broadcast in 1955 and repeated — again live — a year later. A second production, on tape, was undertaken in 1960 and re-run two years later.

Most classics seem to be pegged around holiday themes or spirit. NBC's "The Way of the Cross," a handsome program telling the Crucifixion story by means of great art, has been repeated five times at Easter, and the Christmas-time "Coming of Christ," using the same techniques, four.

It is strange that there are no dramatic programs included, but this is partly due to the fact that many of the television "golden age" dramas of "Playhouse 90," "Studio One" and other anthology series were presented live in the days of the fuzzy kinescopes.

CBS announced Thursday that it will drop the Monday night "Steve Lawrence Show," a new variety hour which has fared badly in the ratings. Art Linkletter's "Hollywood Talent Scouts," a summer replacement show that did pretty well, will fill the hour. The move, expected for the past month, will be effective Dec. 20.

Mrs. Lawson Smith and Mrs. Leslie Powell led children's games. Jeff Jackson won an award for pinning the witch on the broom. Adults were given black paper from which to tear cat designs. The Rev. Eugene H. Winkler judged the best cats had been made by Miss Vicky Bolch and Bobby Kraft.

A wiener roast was held at the outdoor fireplace. Doughnuts and hot cocoa were served by hostesses, Mrs. William Kraft, Mrs. Brandhorst and Mrs. Everett Vannoy.

Power Pool Gives State Giant System

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—A giant electric power pool giving Missouri a single coordinated high voltage system will go into operation over the entire state Friday afternoon.

Ceremonies here at the control center of the Associated Eelectric Cooperative, will give the inter-connection of high voltage lines of power companies and the rural electric cooperatives, a project begun in 1962.

Known as HVI, for High Voltage Inter-Connect, the project will combine about 3,000 miles of high voltage lines, supplying about 5.5 million kilowatts of generating capacity.

It is designed to achieve greater reliability of all systems improve efficiency and insure an adequate supply of power the state.

The featured speaker for the ceremonies will be Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo.

Associated was organized in 1962 as a pooling agent for six generating and transmitting cooperatives supplying wholesale power to 41 cooperatives in the state. These cooperatives supply power to about 250,000 customers, or about one million persons a year.

The six cooperatives were Northwest Electric Power Cooperative, Cameron; Northeast Electric Power Cooperative, Palmyra; Central Electric Power Cooperative, Jefferson City; M & A Electric Power Cooperative, Poplar Bluff; Sho-Me Power Corp., Marshfield; and KAMO Electric Cooperative, Inc., Vinita, Okla.

Since then inter-connection agreements have been made with the Kansas City Power & Light Co.; Union Electric Co.; Missouri Public Service Co. and the Empire District Electric Co.

More than $13 million has been spent for the high voltage transmission line.

Power going into and coming out of the various supply facilities will be controlled by a technician in the control - dispatch center at the Associated headquarters here.

Goats have been used as a source of milk, cheese, meat and mohair and their skin has been used as leather.

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON—Jim Correale (R) of the Manned Spacecraft Center's Crew Systems division point out the advantages of the new lightweight spacesuit which may be used on the 14-day GT-7 mission. The suit is much roomier, has a soft helmet with an enlarged faceplate for greater visibility. The soft helmet can be folded back out of the way and takes much less room than the bulkier conventional hard helmet. Fred Sprass wears the suit which is described as being much more comfortable for the longer flights. (UPI)

CHICAGO—When this cat went up a tree it wasn't to set any endurance record, (upper left) but when four days later, the animal was still up there, it remained for Humane Officer Roy Patnode, (right) of the Animal Welfare League to do something about it. Using an 18-foot noose pole Patnode staged another rescue and dropped the animal into a waiting cage, (bottom-left). (UPI)

Mrs. Stanley H. Brauer

Autumn Vows Unite in Marriage Karen Klein and Stanley Brauer

The autumn marriage of Miss Karen Sue Klein to Mr. Stanley H. Brauer took place at seven o'clock Saturday evening, Oct. 23 at Syracuse Baptist Church. The Rev. Robert Potter solemnized double ring vows.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Klein, Syracuse, are parents of the bride. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brauer, Syracuse.

Organist was Mrs. Donald Zumsteg. Miss Janet Poe played piano selections. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Lolitta O'Bryan sang "Because" and Miss Peggy McClelland sang "Walk Hand in Hand."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ankle length sheath dress of white Rachelell lace over white satin, fashioned with a square neckline, which dropped to a V in back. Lace scallops accented the neckline and hemline and formed points at the wrists of the long tapered sleeves. The satin overskirt, secured with a bow at the front waistline, swept into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was of imported illusion and was attached to a crown of iridescent pearls and crystals. Her bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

Honor attendants, dressed alike, were Miss Charlene Hofstetter, Fortuna, maid of honor, Miss Patricia Lorenz, Richmond Heights, and Miss Betty Higgins, Stockton. Their gowns were of softly fitted A line styling in aqua satin, covered with turquoise silk organza. Their headpieces were bows of satin and silk organza with silk illusion circular veils. They carried bouquets of blue carnations and white pompon chrysanthemums.

Miss Janie Klein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Klein, Syracuse, was flower girl. She wore a dress of aqua satin which featured an Empire waistline and a full skirt covered wiht nylon chiffon. Her headpiece was a bow of satin and silk organza with a silk illusion circular veil. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Miss Marcia Klein, sister of the bride, was candlelighter. She was attired in an aqua dress of nylon chiffon, styled like those of the other attendants. Mr. Steven Brauer, brother of the bridegroom, also lighted candles.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was Mr. Everett O'Bryan, St. Louis, and groomsmen were Mr. E. H. Brauer, Shelbina, and Mr. Bill Morgan, Waynesville. Ushers were Mr. Dean Allee, Sedalia; Mr. Ken Oswald, Syracuse, Mr. John Potter, Humansville.

Rings were carried to the altar by Master Kent Klein, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Klein wore a beige double knit dress with matching jacket and brown accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of bronze frenched chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother selected a turquoise knit suit accessorized with black. Her corsage was of white frenched chrysanthemums.

After the ceremony, a church reception was held. Serving refreshments were Mrs. Virgil Stegner, Mrs. Dean Allee, Mrs. Don Charles and Miss Joyce Brauer.

Attending the guest book was Miss Linda Robertson. At the gift table were Miss Connie Jackman, Miss Barbara Price and Miss Sandy Parke.

The bride is a graduate of Tipton High School and attended Southwest Baptist College, Bolivar. The bridegroom attended Tipton High School and was graduated from the University of Missouri, Columbia. The bride is employed at Co-Mo Electric Corporation, and the bridegroom farms. The couple resides in Tipton.

Rock Island RR Will Sell Part Of Its Line

CHICAGO (AP) — An agreement to sell certain portions of the Rock Island lines to the Santa Fe Railway was approved Thursday by directors of the Chicago and North Western Railway, subject to the North Western winning control of the Rock Island.

Under the terms of an agreement between North Western and Santa Fe, approved by Santa Fe directors last week, the Santa Fe would pay $100 million for all Rock Island lines south of Herington ,Kan., as well as the line from Herington to Salina, Kan. In addition, Santa Fe would acquire track rights over the Rock Island between Kansas City and St. Louis under a joint facility agreement. All other Rock Island lines would be retained.

The North Western has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for control of Rock Island for the purpose of merger. A proposed merger of Rock Island and Union Pacific Railroad is opposed by both the North Western and the Santa Fe.

THE LIVING ROOM SOFA

Mr. Fieth

The sofa (or sectional Sofa) is the most important piece of furniture in your living room because the rest of the room is built around the sofa.

Furnishing a bedroom or dining room is somewhat simpler, but a living room is an ensemble made up of many different items and accessories which must all blend together to create the picture you desire.

The best way to start furnishing a living room is with the sofa because once that is selected then you know the type, color and size of all the other pieces you will need in the room.

Today's furniture manufacturers are making a wider and finer selection of sofas than ever before in furniture history. These range all the way from simple narrow or wood arm sofas to formal sofas with elegant fabrics and carved frames; from solid colors to floral quilts and brocades. There are Sofas with diamond or bisquit tufted backs, with channel backs or button tufted; sofas which open to beds; and everything from small love seats to king sized sofas.

We invite you to browse around in our store — with no obligation — and see our wonderful sofa selection and ideas along with other furniture.

Today from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Homakers is open for browsing only. No sales people present. Have fun. Stop in and browse.

Transformation In Great Britain

LONDON (AP) — For generations, Britain's Tories — win or lose — have been sufficient unto themselves: their crucible of high aristocracy, landed gentry, old Eton, they were sure, would forever produce the right chap at the right time.

But Edward Richard George Heath, now Conservative party leader and a Tory true and through, represents a radical departure from the class-conscious upper class. There is nothing Etonian in his background, no well-connected cousins, no ducal aunts—just a father who was a carpenter and a mother who was a parlor maid.

In his future, there could be residence at 10 Downing St., home of Britain's prime ministers. For, at this moment, Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party margin in Parliament is so slim that events of relatively minor nature could cause a reversal in the reigning government.

Ted Heath, husky, handsome and of humble origin reflects a transformation occurring in British conservatism.

Mindful, perhaps, of his own classlessness, he has described as one of his goals a desire to break down all "the unnecessary and artificial barriers" dividing Britons.

Heath began his climb on the political ladder at Balliol College, Oxford, where he was a scholarship student and organist in the college chapel. He came to note, not as a musician, but as a vigorously anti-Fascist Tory president of the Oxford Union Debating Society.

Travels in civil war Spain, Nazi Germany and other parts of Europe led him to rebel against the official Conservative policies under Neville Chamberlain of appeasing the dictators.

Luck plays a part in the lives of most politicians. The break that may well explain Heath's meteoric rise toward power in only 15 years of parliamentary life came in the fall of 1938. A special election took place in Oxford city with the Chamberlain-Hitler Munich pact as the main issue. Quintin Hogg was the official Tory candidate defending Munich against the attacks of Socialist A.D. Lindsay, master of Balliol.

Harold Macmillan, himself rebelling along with Winston Churchill, came out in public support of Lindsay. Young Heath did too, canvassing energetically for the Socialist. Churchill, Sir Anthony Eden and Macmillan never forgot. And Heath's promotion in each of their administrations was swift after he entered Parliament in 1950.

Heath was elected to the Conservative leadership last July — after Labor returned to power in a general election — succeeding Sir Alec Douglas-Home — ironically, Chamberlain's private secretary at Minich.

The onetime 14th Earl of Home's patrician manner and illustrious ancestry failed to fire a popular response in a country beset with long-term problems and obsessed with the need for modernization.

Among his own followers agitation mounted early this year for a more ruthless and vigorous reaction to the icy professionalism of Harold Wilson.

Sir Alec quit and Heath was chosen by the democratic method of a secret ballot—the first held by Conservative lawmakers.

The sources of Heath's success stemmed from three crucial episodes in his parliamentary career under Conservative prime ministers.

—In 1956 and 1957 when the Suez crisis and its aftermath nearly wrecked the party, Heath was chief Conservative floor manager in the Commons. It was his job to preserve at least surface unity and this he did through a combination of influence, authority, tact and toughness.

—From 1960 to 1963 he was chief British delegate at the Common Market negotiations. His energy and ability impressed even his critics.

—In 1964, braving the hostility of fellow Conservatives, he hustled a law through Parliament scrapping certain retail price-fixing arrangements. Again the benefits of his determination were widely acclaimed.

All these things, taken together, gave Heath a reputation as a man of action rather than a thinker, a man of tactical genius rather than of unswerving political conviction.

At 49 Heath is the youngest Tory leader since Disraeli — and the same age as Wilson.

Heath and Wilson both are products of lower middle-class homes, of state schools. Both went to Oxford on scholarships, both took degrees in politics, economics, philosophy, both held civil service jobs before plunging into politics. Both have mastered the technicalities of government and of the great national issues of the day. Both have the reformer's zeal.

Yet in personality, despite the ambitions and aggressiveness they share, the two men are quite different.

Where Heath is plain and direct with a no-nonsense approach, Wilson tends to be subtle, smart and sarcastic.

Where Heath is a sound, fluent but unexciting speaker, Wilson is highly articulate, a master of repartee, with a tongue that cuts and often wounds.

When Heath was contending for Tory leadership one thing fellow Tories held against him was that he is a bachelor.

They argued that electors, especially women, like to identify party leaders with the picture of cozy family situations in the center of power at 10 Downing Street.

The British have had bachelor-premiers before — three of them among the 46 who have served since the office was established in 1720. They were the Earl of Wilmington (1742), William Pitt (1783) and the Earl of Balfour (1902).

What does he believe in?

"I believe in free enterprise. That you can only achieve results through men and women. It must come from their own initiative, energy, enterprise. Of course free enterprise has to work within a framework which is set by the state.

"I want to see more and more people in this country with the opportunity for living fuller lives, with less wear and tear, daily grind and awful chores.

"I want to see a society in which barriers are broken down, with people on frank and open terms and relations with each other, in which there are no unnecessary and artificial barriers."

Would he want, as Conservative prime minister, to preserve and develop Britain's own nuclear deterrent?

Britain should, Health told this interviewer, maintain the right to withdraw her national nuclear power from NATO "in case of ultimate need which is of dire national emergency." The Americans and French have that right — so should Britain.

As for developing British nuclear weapons:

"The extent of British nuclear power and the extent to which we can engage ourselves in new technological advances in the nuclear field depends on our resources."

What sort of role does he think Europe should play between the United States and the Soviet Union?

Certainly not as "a go-between, a buffer or as a third force," he said. But the balance between the two sides of he Atlantic is changing economically, financially, militarily. As the process goes on and as a larger market builds up in Europe the chances will improve for a better partnership "between equals" (meaning the Americans, Europeans and Russians).

In this context Heath said he sees Soviet policies modifying in Europe and in the developing countries. He attributed this to the developing influence of Red China and to the limits on Soviet economic help for the developing lands.

For Heath and Wilson — and the parties they lead — a hard winter lies ahead. Neither expects, nor will yield, any quarter to the other. A single miscalculation, a sudden illness of one member of Parliament, an automobile accident could upset or entrench the government in a delicately poised parliamentary situation — and thus plunge the land into political and economic turmoil.

Traces Famed Shaw Gardens History for Local AAUW

The world famous Shaw's Garden, located in St. Louis, was founded in 1859 by Henry Shaw, an early day merchant of St. Louis, Dr. David M. Gates, director, told members of AAUW and their guests, members of the Sedalia Garden Clubs, at a meeting Monday evening.

The meeting was held at the Boonslick Regional Library where Dr. Gates' sister, Miss Margaret Gates, is head librarian.

Dr. Gates explained that Shaw had accumulated a fortune and retired at the age of 40. His time was then spent in traveling and trying to decide what to do with his wealth and with the rest of his life.

A group of St. Louis men urged him to establish a botanical garden in St. Louis and make it a garden and institute of botany, which he did. This is one of the rare institutions in America for studying plants, Dr. Gates said, and has the greatest library in the world in the field of botany, for here are five and a half centuries of botanical books.

Shaw's Garden, the speaker said, is not to be matched by any within the central part of the United States, for only on the east coast and west coast are institutions such as here in Missouri.

Botanists come from all over the world to enjoy plants and study plants, but, he pointed out, Shaw's Garden is having financial difficulties.

Dr. Gates stated that the purchase of books and dry plants was started a century ago. There are two million specimen of dry plants at Shaw's Garden, one an early collection made by the Germans in Africa, and also specimen from Admiral Byrd's first expedition. One of the collections from Africa, he explained, was taken to Berlin, the other sent to Missouri. Berlin's collection was lost through the bombing of that city and the only plants of that expedition of Africa is in Shaw's Garden.

Today, Dr. Gates commented, man is destroying vegetation by polluting the air and killing plants many of which will soon be extinct. They are eradicating it with highways and cities and plowed ground.

Once, he went on to say, there was a black walnut forest growing in an area here but there are few left. Today only small groups of black walnut trees may be found, and thus the gene of black walnut trees have been changed.

Millions of dollars are being spent in space, trying to get to the moon or Mars, but the evolutionary history on earth is being ignored. Any single idea, Dr. Gates said, that comes out of the study of one or two or three plants, as a basis for evolution is furthering knowledge. For this reason the collection at Shaw's Garden is invaluable for it is a record of which plants were here 100 years ago, 50 years ago, that are no longer here. They went under the plow, he said.

In speaking of science, and Dr. Gates is a scientist, he said this is a place for creativity. Men who can think differently. They must be skeptics, believe something is wrong, and not accept things but continue to ask "why?" It is fun, he added, to sometimes show up with something never thought of before.

In youngsters the qualities that one might look for to be found in budding scientists are that they are usually shy, they are persistent, great readers and have an intensive curiosity. They spend their time doing what they want to do, and work hard on things of their own choosing. They are not the best students, and he went on to say that those who were in science classes and got the top grades, nobody ever heard of again. A scientist must work hard, but suddenly they find something and it is very gratifying, he said.

He told many interesting things to be found in Shaw's Garden, the beauty, the rare plant life, the botanical findings, and of the acres of native timber.

Dr. Gates said that the work there is to understand how a plant reacts to environment. It is through this study that they learn why some plants can grow in one climate and not in another, why some grow in the sun and some in the shade.

Plants, he said, sweat in the sunlight and there is an evaporation of water, the sweat cools the plant, but this is why the plants must be watered in hot weather. Understanding the flow of heat of a plant, scientists have found out why they grow where they do.

Through a film he explained the boundary around the plant and around the human that acts as a cushion, and from the plant or a leaf or a person could be seen the flow of heat that resembled smoke and sometimes even flames. The film showed the difference in the blowing of the wind on a leaf. The grass, he said, was very hot and insects must either burrow in the ground or climb to the end of blades of grass. Night, he went on to say, cools plant life.

Science, Dr. Gates said, is having ideas, pursuing them and understanding them, in order to learn why plants do what they do.

Mrs. John Zulauf, president of AAUW, presided over the meeting, and introduced Mrs. Leonard Hall, newly elected president of the Sedalia Council of Garden Clubs. Mrs. Hall expressed appreciation for the Garden Club members for the opportunity to hear Dr. Gates.

Dr. Powers Takes Over K. C. College

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dr. Eugene P. Powers, who has been chairman of the department of education and psychology at East Stroudsburg State College in Pennsylvania the past six years, will become president of the Kansas City College of Osteopathy and Surgery in January.

The appointment was announced Thursday. Dr. K. J. Davis, dean of the college, has been acting president since Dr. Richard Eby resigned May 31.

Dr. Powers formerly was a dean at Villanova University. He has also been a visiting professor at Scranton University, Johns Hopkins University and La Salle College.

India Reds Tripped By Peking

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The funniest political vaudeville act in India these days is being staged by the nation's hapless pro-China Communists.

These Indian Reds are great ideological contortionists but every time they start performing, their Peking comrades trip them up.

Things are so discouraging that E. M. S. Namboodiripad, leader of the pro-China Reds, has started addressing what he calls "farewell meetings." He figures he'll be out of circulation soon, perhaps at a government rest house — with bars.

In 1962 India and Communist China were great friends and the pro-Peking Reds were busily constructing a political empire under the Indian government's nose. The future looked bright.

Then the China-India border war erupted and overnight the local Reds became political outcasts.

The pro-Peking Communists had internal discipline, however, and methodically rebuilt their organization. When the Indian party split in 1963, along lines of the Moscow-Peking quarrel, the pro-Chinese faction claimed about 100,000 of the 175,000 card-carrying members.

Slowly, things got better and by last March the pro-Peking faction almost had overcome China's 1962 performance and the poor reviews that followed. Pro-Chinese candidates won important elections in Kerala State and Calcutta city.

Less than two months later, Peking stuck out its foot again and the act collapsed.

This time, Peking was wooing neighboring Pakistan and in the heat of its courtship forgot its lovers in India. Peking supported Pakistan in its territorial dispute with India over the Rann of Kutch. It charged India with "big nation chauvinism and expansionism."

Indians were furious at this Chinese intervention and again the national reputation of the pro-China Communists plummeted.

China shouldered into the India-Pakistan quarrel in September, waving ultimatums at India and shuffling troops along the northern frontier.

This leaves Indian Communists with the problem of appearing nationalistic enough to survive in India's almost jingoistic political atmosphere — and still be true to Peking.

They try to suggest quietly that India make peace with China but that is denounced as treason. They claim China isn't India's enemy but that doesn't go over well, either.

In utter frustration, they spend much time in harmless debate with pro-Russian Communists whose stock, ironically, has gone up.

The whole affair makes Home Minister G. L. Nanda's job much easier. He's the government's Communist watcher and jails them in batches when they appear to be making headway among India's 480 millions.

At the moment they don't look as if they are going anywhere — thanks to their Peking comrades.

A STEP BACK IN TIME—This is Third St. in Bay St. Louis, Miss., and if the scene is a bit reminiscent of the 1930s, congratulations are in order for the prop men who created this "set" for a new film, "This Property Is Condemned." Prices painted on windows and the model T Ford at the curb create an authentic time period in which the plot is laid. Here, two of the cast, Mary Badham and Robert Redford, stroll by an old-time grocery store.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors attending the White House conference on health argue the position of the American Medical Association on smoking and health.

The House investigation of the Ku Klux Klan takes a recess until next Tuesday.

Trial of the Communist party for failure to register runs into a jam on legal technicalities.

DOCTORS: Sharp debate developed at the White House conference on health over the position of the American Medical Association on smoking and health.

It was kicked off by Emerson Foote, chairman of a quasigovernmental council on smoking and health who expressed regret the conference had not discussed smoking.

Dr. Ira Schamber, of New York arose from the audience to ask why the AMA's House of Delegates decided to take no position on the surgeon general's report condemning smoking as a health hazard.

Schamberg asked whether there was any connection with AMA acceptance of a $10-million tobacco industry grant for further research on smoking hazards.

Dr. Ralph C. Teall, Sacramento, president of the California State Medical Society, objected sharply. He said the House of Delegates does not take a stand on scientific matters and the report on smoking involved scientific questions.

KLAN: "Nobody knew how big this Klan was, or where it was located. They know that now. They know the front names of all those klaverns."

Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D-Ga., gave that as his summary of results so far of the investigation of the Ku Klux Klan by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Weltner, who sparked the inquiry, said in an interview that the best estimate by committee investigators puts Klan membership at 50,000. He said that when the hearings began the estimate was 12,000.

The estimate of strength has not yet been brought out in the hearings which recessed until next Tuesday.

COMMUNISTS: Legal technicalities balked questioning of a California housewife who said she was a Communist for the FBI.

U.S. District Judge William B. Jones upheld objections of counsel for the Communist party when the government sought to question Mrs. Lula Mae Thompson about her reported willingness four years ago to register the party as a Soviet agent.

The party is on trial charged in 23 counts with failure to register with the attorney general.

The government in unsuccessful attempts to question Mrs. Thompson, of French Lick, Calif., sought to prove she could have signed registration forms if she had been asked to do so.

Accidental Find Moves Time Back

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A geologist's curiosity about an interesting ledge of rocks in the Canadian Arctic may have yielded the oldest animal remains ever found. The fossils are believed to be at least 720 million years old — pushing back the known dates of animal life by at least 120 million years.

The discovery was described today by Proffessor Andrew H. McNair of the Dartmouth College Geology Department at one of the opening sessions of the Geological Society of America annual meeting, a 3-day affair.

The fossilized remains are of small, clamlike creatures called brachiopods. They may be even older than 720 million years since the age-telling process called radiodating establishes only a minimum.

In the same ledge were several kinds of fossilized tracks and trails made by borrowing wormlike animals and small tubes and spines of a species not yet know.

McNair and six Dartmouth students spent six weeks last summer on Victoria Island, north of the Canadian mainland. He said while returning to camp one day he noted the rock ledge about one half mile away.

"I was cold and tired and almost didn't go to inspect it," McNair said. "But when I did, I knew how gold prospectors felt when they stumbled across the mother lode."

Previous fossil finds have shown advanced species such as the brachiopods existed in the cambrian era which began about 600 million years ago. The only life known previous to that time was that of simple aquatic plan and the minute reproductive spores of plants.

"In the time clock of life on earth, dinosaurs didn't appear until 200 million years ago and mammals — characterized by hair and blood — were relative newcomers 60 million years ago. Human beings date back only a million years or so.

Geologists believe a sudden major change in the earth's physical environment took place about 600 million years ago. Biologists feel the earliest animals with specialized organs and tissues could have developed only after oxygen became plentiful.

Biologists and palenotologists thought it unlikely that advanced forms of animal life should appear suddenly at the 600 million-years-ago mark. The McNair party findings constitute a breakthrough in the knowledge of life during the earliest—very long—periods of geologic time.

The brachiopods, measuring one-half inch across, had two interlocking, paper-thin shells, which were ridged with growth lines. They showed highly evolved and efficient digestive, locomotive, respiratory skeletal and nervous systems.

Some 450 papers will be presented to the 3,000 geologists and associated groups in 41 technical sessions at the Kansas City meeting.

Weather Blamed For Poor Quality of Wine

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's wine harvest this year was one of the biggest produced, but much of it is of poor quality due to weather.

A long summer of drought was broken by heavy rains which reduced sugar content just before the grapes were picked.

Weather was more favorable in the Douro region where port is produced, although grapes were small. The quality of the port will not be established until it has had a year or so to mature. The last vintage year was 1963.

Reveal Plans For 1,312 Apartments

LENEXA, Kan. (AP) — Promoters have disclosed plans to build 1,312 apartment units in the next five years in this suburb about 15 miles southwest of downtown Kansas City.

"The apartment complex will mean more tax revenue to the city than any single industry we have," said Mayor Jack Marshall. "It will pay more than $250,000 a year in taxes."

Lenexa has a population of about 3,900, and the 80-acre apartment project will accommodate more than 5,000.

Kassuba Development Corp. of Milwaukee, Wis., and Palm Beach, Fla., announced it will start the first phase immediately and expects to finish 256 apartment units in the summer of 1966. The total cost of the five-year project is estimated at $22 million and it is described as the largest such development ever undertaken in Kansas.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, said Thursday he will seek re-election in 1968.

"Of course, I'm going to run again—if I'm alive," he said. Gruening, 78, has been in the Senate since Alaska became a state in 1959.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy is reported "feeling better" after a three-day bout with the flu.

A spokesman for the former first lady said Thursday, "She had a touch of the flu for the last few days. She remained indoors today, but she is feeling better."

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Sophie Tucker, suffering from an intestinal inflammation, is "resting comfortably" at Mt. Sinai Hospital.

Good Taste an 'Out' Thing?

What's happening to "good taste?"

What's happening to it, obviously, is that it's going the way of modest modes, subtle sex, gentlemen who gave their seats to ladies, and other old-fashioned customs which are now too generally regarded as quaintly kooky.

The subject comes to mind because of a recent television program in which "students" in London, Paris, Belgrade and Mexico City were given an opportunity to ask questions of three distinguished Americans in Washington via the Early Bird satellite.

The eminent panelists were former president Dwight D. Eisenhower; Arthur J. Goldberg, American ambassador to the United Nations; and Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall.

The program was billed as a "documentary" and could have been informative, dignified and extremely worth-while.

But it turned out to be a worldwide opportunity for the "students"—and the term is used loosely—to display unconcealed anti-Americanism, youthful impertinence, brassy disrespect for the stature of the panelists, and, above all, bad taste.

The tone of the questioning was argumentative, prejudiced, bitter and smarty-pants. The youths with the long hair and sideburns didn't ask questions as much as they made little soapbox speeches on behalf of the Viet Cong and our enemies in South America.

The program could have been written off as just an isolated instance if it hadn't been too typical of a mounting trend.

Good taste has been taking a beating for some time now.

The "freedom for filth" demonstrations on campus; the avalanche of girly magazines, each more girly than the last; sex-saturated movies; more and more violence on television; news stories which spare no gory or intimate details; the public showing and exposure of highly personal affairs which were once regarded as purely private — the list grows longer and longer day by day.

What to do about it?

Well, you can't stamp out bad taste with laws or regulations. And after the television demonstration the other day, you apparently can't stifle it by education.

So perhaps the best way to restore good taste as an "in" thing is for everyone who believes in it to be very careful to set a good example. And to voice open opposition and resentment to displays of bad taste whenever they occur.

One thing seems certain. We aren't going to really achieve that Great Society as long as bad manners, bad taste and bratty impertinence are given featured billings on a worldwide screen.

Markie Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Walker of the Dean apartments celebrated her birthday by entertaining the following friends: Jean Callis, Harriet Bertman, Peggy Priesendorf, Margaret Liming, Selma Bloess, Nancy Campbell, Wilma Ruth Shelton, Gloria Martin, Marjorie Lou McLaughlin, Madge Cloney, Marjorie Courtney, Janet Quinn, Betty Stafford, Rosalie Chasnoff, Loyce Wilson, Jane Van Doran, Ruth Scotten, Carolyn Wadicka, Paula Pressler, Jayne Ann Mater, Ruth Ann Keuper, Violet Richardson, Emmalee Schlichting, Gayle Scruton, Dorothy Williams, Beverly Rinchler, Joe Potts, Dick Dean, Buddy Klink, Billy Bernard, Pinkie Scott, Bobby Park and Eva Ann McNeal.

Members of American Legion Post No. 16 will have a hall for meetings and social gatherings in the near future, located on the second floor of the building owned by Don Lamm at 118½ South Ohio Avenue. It will be remodeled for this purpose. The building which was formerly owned by the Army and Navy store was badly burned in an early morning fire last month.

Two large statues on the lawn of Dr. K. R. Barnum, 234 South Grand avenue, were practically destroyed by Halloween pranksters. The statues were formerly on the lawn of St. Mary's Hospital. One was a lion with a rider carrying a harp and the other was a horse being attacked by a tiger and a rider trying to spear it. The statues were brought to Sedalia many years ago by Colonel Jaynes and placed on the lawn of his residence which later became the hospital.

Curb Venereal Disease

One of the health problems facing the nation is the great increase in venereal disease particularly among the 15 to 24 age group. In the United States 47 per cent of the victims are in this category.

The World Health Organization, recently meeting in Washington, is determined that venereal disease must be curbed and made the following recommendations:

Use of modern laboratory methods to diagnose syphilis and gonorrhea, the two major venereal diseases.

Develop a program for VD case finding built around a corps of specially-trained health workers who would bring in for health checks all suspected contacts of a VD victim.

Stress in medical schools on VD training alerting future physicians to this growing menace to our young people.

Prevention of the disease is the best attack. What has happened to the parental warnings of putting a little fear in the minds of their adolescents about promiscuous sexual behavior?

Showing health films in the high schools on the crippling and blinding effects of venereal disease; explaining how it is acquired and knowledge to the group most seriously affected.

While this is a world problem, our own people are very much involved.

Traveling salesmen, meeting by chance in a Boscobel, Wis., hotel room in 1896, organized the Gideon Society, which has since distributed millions of Bibles.

Bamboo Huts Form Village That Neither Side Wants

DAK RTIH, South Viet Nam (AP) —This is one village the Viet Cong will never overrun.

Dak Rtih is a drab collection of bamboo huts standing on stilts in a jungle clearing 185 miles northwest of Saigon, near the Cambodian border. In all of Quang Duc Province, where hardly a week goes by without some pillage or hamlet being harassed by the Communists, this is a village that neither side wants.

Dak Rtih dwells in ignored neutrality because all 31 families in the village have at least one case of leprosy in their household and, sooner or later, all 177 villagers probably will be stricken by the dread disease.

The mud-street village sits on the bank of a river deep in the heart of Viet Cong country.

Once or twice a month an American missionary used to come from Ban Me Thuot, bringing supplies for the little, tin-roofed dispensary. Occasionally, a Vietnamese missionary, a convert from Buddhism to Christianity, came on foot from Gia Nghia, bringing an encouraging word and maybe some candy for the children. But not in many months has anyone come, not since early May when the Viet Cong stepped up their terror tactics in the area.

The villagers were stunned with delight when our convoy rolled in one simmering October day, down a road that had been closed off and on since February, with a truck load of salt, rice, wheat, soap and cigarettes and an ambulance full of medical supplies.

Lt. Col. Dang Huu Hong, the soft-spoken province chief who used to be a high school principal in North Viet Nam, arranged the surprise visit, with the help of George Gaspard of Lee Hall, Va., the USOM — United States Operations Mission — representative in the province, and Maj. Robert Joulthrop of Eufaula, Ala., the acting sector advisor for Quang Duc.

Just getting to Dak Rtih involved a three-hour trip over a washboard jungle road, with three armored scout cars up front, two companies of infantry following on trucks, four Jeeps with 50-caliber machine guns spread among the column and an L19 observation plane hovering overhead. But the tears of joy running down the face of the young mother clutching a bar of soap to wash her new-born baby made the whole operation seem as important as anything else going on in the war that day.

The troops stood nervously in the village street, keeping as aloof as possible from the people and their drab little huts. But Lt. Col. Hong showed not the slightest disdain for the constituents he had come to help. Nor did any of the visiting Americans. With elaborate Oriental courtesy, the province chief shook the arms of villagers who had no hands, drank the ceremonial rice wine in their dark, smoky huts and graciously accepted their token gifts of huge, home-grown cucumbers, promising that they would be on his table that very night.

Gaspard moved among the villagers, handing out food in CARE packages, clothing from Catholic relief services and soap donated by several hotel chains. Maj. Moulthrop casually chatted and shared his pack of cigarettes with an old, ashen-faced man who kept blowing smoke from an aperture in his face where his nose used to be.

Staff Sgt. Alfred Snay, the team medic from Mount Clemens, Mich., worked efficiently with Nguyen Van Anh, his Vietnamese counterpart, to resupply the dispensary. Lt. Art Lovgren of Chicago, the province civil affairs advisor, joined Ho Hom Ha, a Vietnamese Protestant missionary, in climbing up the little ladders, made of gnarled teak tree roots, to visit in the huts and advise the villagers on ways to cut down rat infestation and improve sanitation.

But for all of their efficiency and devotion to duty, the visitors could hardly suppress a shudder for the children of Dak Rtih — handsome, laughing, bright-eyed children with little blotches of skin already turning hard and gray like dirty concrete.

As darkness came down to meet the jungle the convoy moved out of the village, down the line of villagers waving goodby in the road and from the doorways of their huts. A silver of moon rode above the tree tops, and in its pale light the thatched huts of Dak Rtih retreated quietly into the jungle, into the isolation of the one word that shuts out the world: leprosy.

Pegasus Division

The First Cavalry Division now rides helicopter planes instead of horses. Mrs. Ben Dorcy, widow of a cavalry officer, designed the original shoulder horse patch about 40 years ago. She still likes the insignia, but it does not seem appropriate for the present First Cavalry Division.

How about a horse with wings? Pegasus, the winged stallion of Greek mythology, was a fighting horse. If tradition agreed, the First Cavalry Division, which would retain the memory of the cavalry, and the wings, would make it contemporary. Mrs. Dorcy could easily add wings to her cavalry insignia and the treasured memory of the fighting First would be immortalized on the sleeves of men in the helicopter division. The boys in the egg beaters over Vietnam might like that.

It Isn't Easy to Evade the Draft

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—If way-out groups should succeed in getting large numbers of young men to falsely pose as conscientious objectors, they're going to be in for a surprise.

The local draft boards require a battery of evidence.

The burden of proof is on the conscientious objector, not the government. As Selective Service men say, a man can't just sit back and avoid service by simply saying he is a conscientious objector and "daring the government to prove. . . (he) does not have such a belief."

To start with, there's a standard questionnaire for conscientious objectors. Some of its questions:

"Do you believe in a Supreme Being?"

"Describe the nature of your belief which is the basis of your claim made. . . above, and state whether or not your belief in a Supreme Being involves duties which to you are superior to those arising from any human relation."

"Explain how, when and from whom or from what source you received the training and acquired the belief which is the basis of your claim. . ."

"Give the name and present address of the individual upon whom you rely most for religious guidance."

"Under what circumstances, if any, do you believe in the use of force?"

"Describe the actions and behavior in your life which in your opinion most conspicuously demonstrate the consistency and depth of your religious convictions."

"Have you ever given public expression, written or oral, to the views herein expressed as the basis for your claim made. . . above? If so, specify when and where."

"Give the names and other information indicated concerning persons who could supply information as to the sincerity of your professed convictions against participation in war."

The draft board also wants to know where the "objector" attends church or other religious meetings, who the pastor is—and when (or whether) he became a church member.

If the local draft board is convinced the young man is a genuine conscientious objector, he is so classified. If they have doubts, they may call him in for an interview (or he may request one).

If he is dissatisfied with their verdict, he may appeal to his state appeal board, which then reviews his case.

If the state board is uncertain, it sends the material to the Justice Department, which usually asks the Federal Bureau of Investigation to gather evidence. (If met with a flood of objector applications from one or more areas, the FBI could call in agents from other parts of the country.)

At this point, the "CO" applicant may request a hearing before a Justice Department representative.

A Justice Department report goes to the state appeal board — which then makes a decision.

Unless the state board decision is unanimous, the conscientious objector can take an appeal to the President. In practice, this means to the National Selective Service Appeal Board.

If that decision, too, goes against him, the CO may then wait, report to the local processing center for physical and mental tests and refuse to be inducted when and if called.

Then his case goes before the courts.

Unwanted Birds

Out of my office window
Is roof and bricks and sky,
And sometimes only shadows
Of birds go fluttering by,
But often I see sparrows
Between the bricks bulid nests,
Or perch upon the fire escape
A little while to rest;
And I've seen chubby pigeons
A-wobbling all about
Holding their heads to one side,
Their little chests struck out—
From where has come the blade of grass,
Or twig that one has found?
There are no grass or shrubs or trees
Any place close around,
But on the roof it found it
And held it up real high
As off to some far corner
I watched the pigeon fly,
Its coat of many colors
Gleaming in the sun,
There are so many favorite birds,
But the pigeon is not one,
Yet, Venice, with its pigeons
Delight the tourist there
Who buy the feed to feed them
As bells chime in St. Mark's Square,
But we just call them dirty
And fume and fret and fuss,
While Venice employs people
To sweep up all the muss,
And I am certain merchants there
Smile with real satisfaction
As they take in tourist dollars
That they have this big attraction;
Now from my office window
No cardinals do I see,
No bluebirds, larks or swallows
But that's all right with me,
I love to watch the pigeons,
All the funny things they do,
I love to watch the sparrows —
And I know that God does, too.

FINDING THE WAY

No Loss Is 'Light'

By RALPH W. LOWE, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Contrasting ideas cried out from the daily paper. One was the news release from the Defense Department, indicating that in Viet Nam there had been a battle and the American losses were light. The other was a local story, headed with two pictures and bringing the news that two men from our area had died.

We know what the tacticians mean when they talk of "light losses." They state that our side lost fewer than might have been lost; or fewer than the enemy. But, to the families of those two men, what is a "light loss"?

When we speak of "limited warfare," what does this mean to the man who is caught in the battle?

It is easy to excuse these semantic problems. Yet it is just this tendency to accept such words and ideas, that indicates a kind of erosion in our thinking and in our spiritual integrity.

Why take a stand against communism unless we defend each man's paramount worth in our thinking at home and in our public statements? Why propose to stand against these military aggressors unless we are willing to accept the principle that the individual is redeemable? To tolerate even the words which depersonalize the human being is to illustrate our dilemma.

Don Cameron Allen has stated, "Composite man, cross-section man, organization man, status seeking man are not here. It is still one of the merits of the humanities that they see man with all his virtues and weaknesses, including his first, middle and last names." That's a modern statement of the insistence of Jesus that even the fall of a sparrow is known.

So our problem is more than a semantic confusion. Churches, communities and cities can reflect their belief concerning mankind in their words and acts. When an affluent city can tolerate civic immoralities, neighborhood blights or slum conditions, it is talking about "light losses." When we applaud our shiny new automobiles and ignore our antiquated facilities we engage in double-think. It's like saying our losses are "light."

The real inching steps of human progress from the cave to this present moment have come at the moment when the dignity of the human being is really known and understood. From the old cry of Cain's conscience, "Am I my brother's keeper?" to the positive call of Jesus to men to love one another is the pilgrimage we must understand. We can't afford to tolerate any erosion of this, even in daily conversation.

So I protest to the Defense Department concerning "light losses." By the same token, let every churchman search his own soul concerning his attitudes and acts, especially when he tries to excuse his tackling of these tough issues. John Donne said it long ago, "Each man's death diminishes me." No loss is a light one!

Win at Bridge

Chance Favors Heart Finesse

By JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In the Jacoby limit raise system the two no-trump response by an unpassed hand to a major suit opening bid is designed to show a strong raise for partner's suit and has nothing to do with no-trump.

A lot of bridge players are going to feel hurt by the inability to bid two no-trump with intention of playing at three no-trump, but after a while they will find that they won't have lost anything.

Thus when playing the Jacoby system South cannot respond two no-trump to his partner's spade opening bid. However, he can respond two clubs and then jump to three no-trump after his partner's two spade rebid.

South has quite a problem at his three no-trump contract. He holds off twice on diamonds, but must win the third lead. Then he runs off four club tricks and each opponent discards a small heart.

His next lead is a low spade toward dummy. West plays low and South puts in dummy's nine. East wins the trick and leads a heart.

The way the cards lie South will make all the rest of the tricks because the heart finesse will work and the spades are going to break. South does not know this and has to decide. What should he do?

The answer is that he should finesse and risk a two trick set. The finesse is an even money proposition to start with, but since West showed five diamonds to his partner's two and each defender had produced three clubs the odds are that East will hold the king of hearts.

Rhesus Monkeys Make Day-Long Chase A Memorable Event

BOSTON (AP) — The only thing worse than a barrel full of monkeys is an airport terminal full of monkeys, as a harassed group of freight handlers and animal experts know today.

Four rhesus monkeys on their way to the Harvard School of Public Health for research purposes escaped from their cages early Thursday at the air freight terminal at Loga International Airport.

The four — Blackie, Baldy, Brucie and Boliba—immediately took to beams and rafters overhead and made monkeys out of everybody trying to catch them for the rest of the day.

Finally three of the monkeys were overpowered in 45 minutes of hand-to-hand combat. But Boliba, described as the ringleader of the insurrection, was still loose at last report, up there swinging.

Predict New Bonds

Same Spiritual Ancestry In Judaism, Christianity

AP Religion Writer

A rebuilt foundation, whose construction was troubled by tensions, delays and confusion, exists today for a full-scale restoration of the bonds between Judaism and Christianity.

Although the ties go deep into a common spiritual ancestry they have been widely disregarded for centuries. But now a firm basis is ready for revitalizing them.

And concrete steps are under way for doing so.

It has been a gradual, sensitive process, climaxed last week by the Vatican Ecumenical Council's formal promulgation of its new affirmation of Roman Catholicism's Jewish roots and its desire to foster this relationship.

"A turning point in 1,900 years of Jewish-Christian history," says Morris B. Abram, president of the American Jewish Committee. He called it a launching toward "a new era in relations between Catholics and Jews."

There are close to a billion Christians in the world, nearly 600 million of them Roman Catholics, and about 13.5 million Jews.

In the United States, Roman Catholic bishops immediately set up a new commission, headed by Bishop Francis P. Leipzig, of Baker, Ore., for strengthening links with Judaism.

He foresaw "a new era of friendship and cooperation with our Jewish brethren for the benefit of all men."

The Vatican action was only the latest major step of a general development, involving other Christians as well, and it came after some strained analysis in Rome and considerable misinterpretation elsewhere.

One of the most widely reported misconceptions was that the declaration "cleared," "absolved" or "exonerated" Jews for Christ's death, falsely implying they previously were blamed for it — which is contrary to Christian doctrine.

What the document actually does, as the Rev. Thomas Stransky of the Vatican unity secretariat points out, is to repudiate that baseless prejudice which has been circulated against Jews by people in and out of the Church.

"As the Church has always held and holds now," the declaration states, "Christ underwent His passion and death freely, because of the sins of mankind and out of infinite love in order that all may reach salvation."

Hitting at the slur against Jews, the document asserts that the specific carrying out of the Crucifixion cannot be attributed "to all Jews without distinction then alive, nor to the Jews of today."

In fact, the declaration points out, Christ, the Virgin Mary, the 12 apostles and most of the early apostles were Jews, and all Christians since are spiritual "sons of Abraham," as stated in Galatians 3:7.

Since this "common spiritual patrimony . . . is so great," the declaration says, studies, work and "fraternal dialogues" are urged to reinforce it.

Similar affirmations of this joint heritage came earlier from other Christian bodies, including the World Council of Churches, embracing most major Protestant, Anglican, Old Catholic and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

Its 1961 general assembly also denounced the notion ascribing Christ's death to Jews. It pointed to the basic Christian kinship to then, noting Jews were the first to accept Christ, and not the only ones who don't today.

With the recent Roman Catholic action, all the major branches of Christendom now stand committed to revivifying the ancient brotherly ties.

As Church scholars have observed, much of the impulse for these moves grew out of the Nazi period and the atrocities against Jews, when rabbis, priests and ministers often shared prison cells.

Rural Churches Hold Prayer Day Services

Day of prayer was observed by members of Houstonia, Bethel and Dresden Methodist Churches and Blackwater Chapel at the chapel Oct. 26.

Leaders were Mrs. Danny Wulff, Mrs. Jack Nagel, Mrs. George Fitcher and Mrs. Everett Vannoy.

Contributive luncheon was served.

Says Birth Control Methods Need Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Shuster, assistant to the president of the University of Notre Dame, said today there's a need for scientists and industries to "find and make readily available better contraceptives."

In a report to the first White House Conference on Health, Shuster also declared "federal initiative and technical and financial support" are needed to expand family - planning service throughout the country, especially among the poor.

But he declared that if such service should be provided, "we must be sure that each family retains full freedom to choose its own timing and number of children, that no coercion is ever employed to alter that choice and that the religious beliefs of each individual are respected."

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

By ALLEN GARVIN

Cats Put on the Dog The cat seems to have become the new status symbol of the pet world. Some 5,000 U.S. catteries now sell more than a quarter of a million purebred cats a year. And no longer does one let the cat eat something she dragged in. The Pet Food Institute reports that manufacturers are now selling $145 million worth of cat food annually. To celebrate Cat Week (Nov. 7-13) you might want to buy your puss a jeweled collar, a bottle of Kitty Kologne, a canopied bed called a Cat Nap-Pur, a pair of cat's pajamas—or just send her for a week to a cat motel in Chicago that provides such luxuries as hi-fi music, parsley-garnished meals, and outdoor "catios."

Credit Cards in the Slot If the Japanese and American vending-machine industries have their way, coins may become totally obsolete. Several firms are currently developing machines dispensing food, drink,

New type of vending machine

candy, and gum that will work when plastic credit cards are inserted into them. The machines "remember" the card number as well as the amount of the transaction, and a bill is mailed to each purchaser at the end of the month.

Greetings Young men receiving induction notices from their draft boards these days share a heritage with their fathers and older brothers—they're getting called up by the same man who has mobilized the country since 1941. Brigadier General Lewis Hershey, the Selective Service director, couldn't pass a draft physical himself because he's 71 and partially blind (he lost vision in his right eye as the result of a polo accident). Still, he supervises a staff of 165 persons and visits as many of his 4,000 draft boards as possible each year.

Brigadier General Hershey

Having drafted 13 million men, Hershey isn't bothered by some youths' reluctance to serve. "When I was a boy on the farm back in Indiana," he says philosophically, "I never got out of bed a single day except under protest, and it's been pretty much that way ever since."

An Island Goes to Sea Rumsey Island in Chesapeake Bay off the Maryland shore looms as the site of one of the nation's first truly authentic boating communities. No mere marina, it will be, by the beginning of next boating season, a full-fledged town with watery streets and boat parking lots instead of garages alongside many homes. The chief feature of the skyline will be twin skyscrapers, where residents will descend into the lobby to board boats for a spin around town.

Marilyn's Secret Admirer Although actress Marilyn Monroe died more than three years ago, her second husband, ex-baseball player Joe DiMaggio, still sends six red roses three times a week to her grave at Hollywood's Westwood Memorial Park. Some 300 fans also show up during a typical week. But attendants are particularly puzzled by a middle-aged, well-dressed woman who spends a half hour at the crypt once a month and refuses to reveal who she is or why she goes there.

The Old College Try Purchasing agents for big colleges are called upon to buy some of the darndest things—usually for graduate students in research. For example, the Cornell University purchasing agent in Ithaca, N.Y., recently has been negotiating for cows' eyeballs, pregnant guinea pigs, a pint of bedbugs, $45 worth of sheep brains "with cranial nerves intact," and a thermometer small enough "to take temperatures of baby swallows." The only request unfulfilled to date: a home-economics teacher's request for "one gross of yardsticks, each 24 inches in length."

Alan King on Stage Alan King has departed from his usual role as a night-club comic and tv personality to tackle his first part on Broadway. This is the only show-business medium that the well-heeled, fully booked performer hasn't mastered. But doing so is so important to him that he poured $25,000 of his own money into the play, "The Impossible Years."

GI Joe's a Doll Now Ex-soldiers, gathering to march in Veterans' Day parades Nov. 11, may be amused to know that they're currently immortalized in the GI Joe doll, a hot-selling toy for boys. This pint-size soldier can be dressed in a wide variety of combat gear, which will bring kids back to the toy counters again and again to buy a whole arsenal of miniature scuba-diving equipment, foot lockers, weapons, etc. GI Joe's face was molded from pictures of 20 World War II Congressional Medal of Honor winners. He even has a small scar to give him authenticity!

What Ever Happened to Kate Smith? Back in the 1940s, Kate Smith, the queen of the radio networks, was on the air as much as 11½ hours a week. When she asked radio audiences, "Won't you buy a war bond?" they promptly purchased $39 million worth! A big singer with a bigger voice, Kate made "God Bless America" almost a national anthem. Her theme, "When the Moon Comes over the Mountain," reached 25 million listeners in her heyday. Then came a virtual show-biz eclipse. Today, still saddened by the death of her long-time manager-partner Ted Collins, Kate has no regular show and makes only a few public appearances a year. She divides her days between Arlington, Va., and Lake Placid, N.Y., and still sings the same simple songs of yesterday—no Beatles-style tunes for her. "Good music will always be around," she says. "The kids get married and come to the good music." As for the kids' modern styles of dancing, that's okay by Kate. "It's their era—but oldsters look grotesque and ridiculous doing the dances and lose whatever dignity they have."

Kate Smith

He heard the command, "Prepare...aim...fire!" Then he saw the flash from rifles pointed at him in a historic death pit. No stranger story has come from Cuba than:

I Faced a Castro Firing Squad

By JULIO PEREZ as told to Jack Ryan

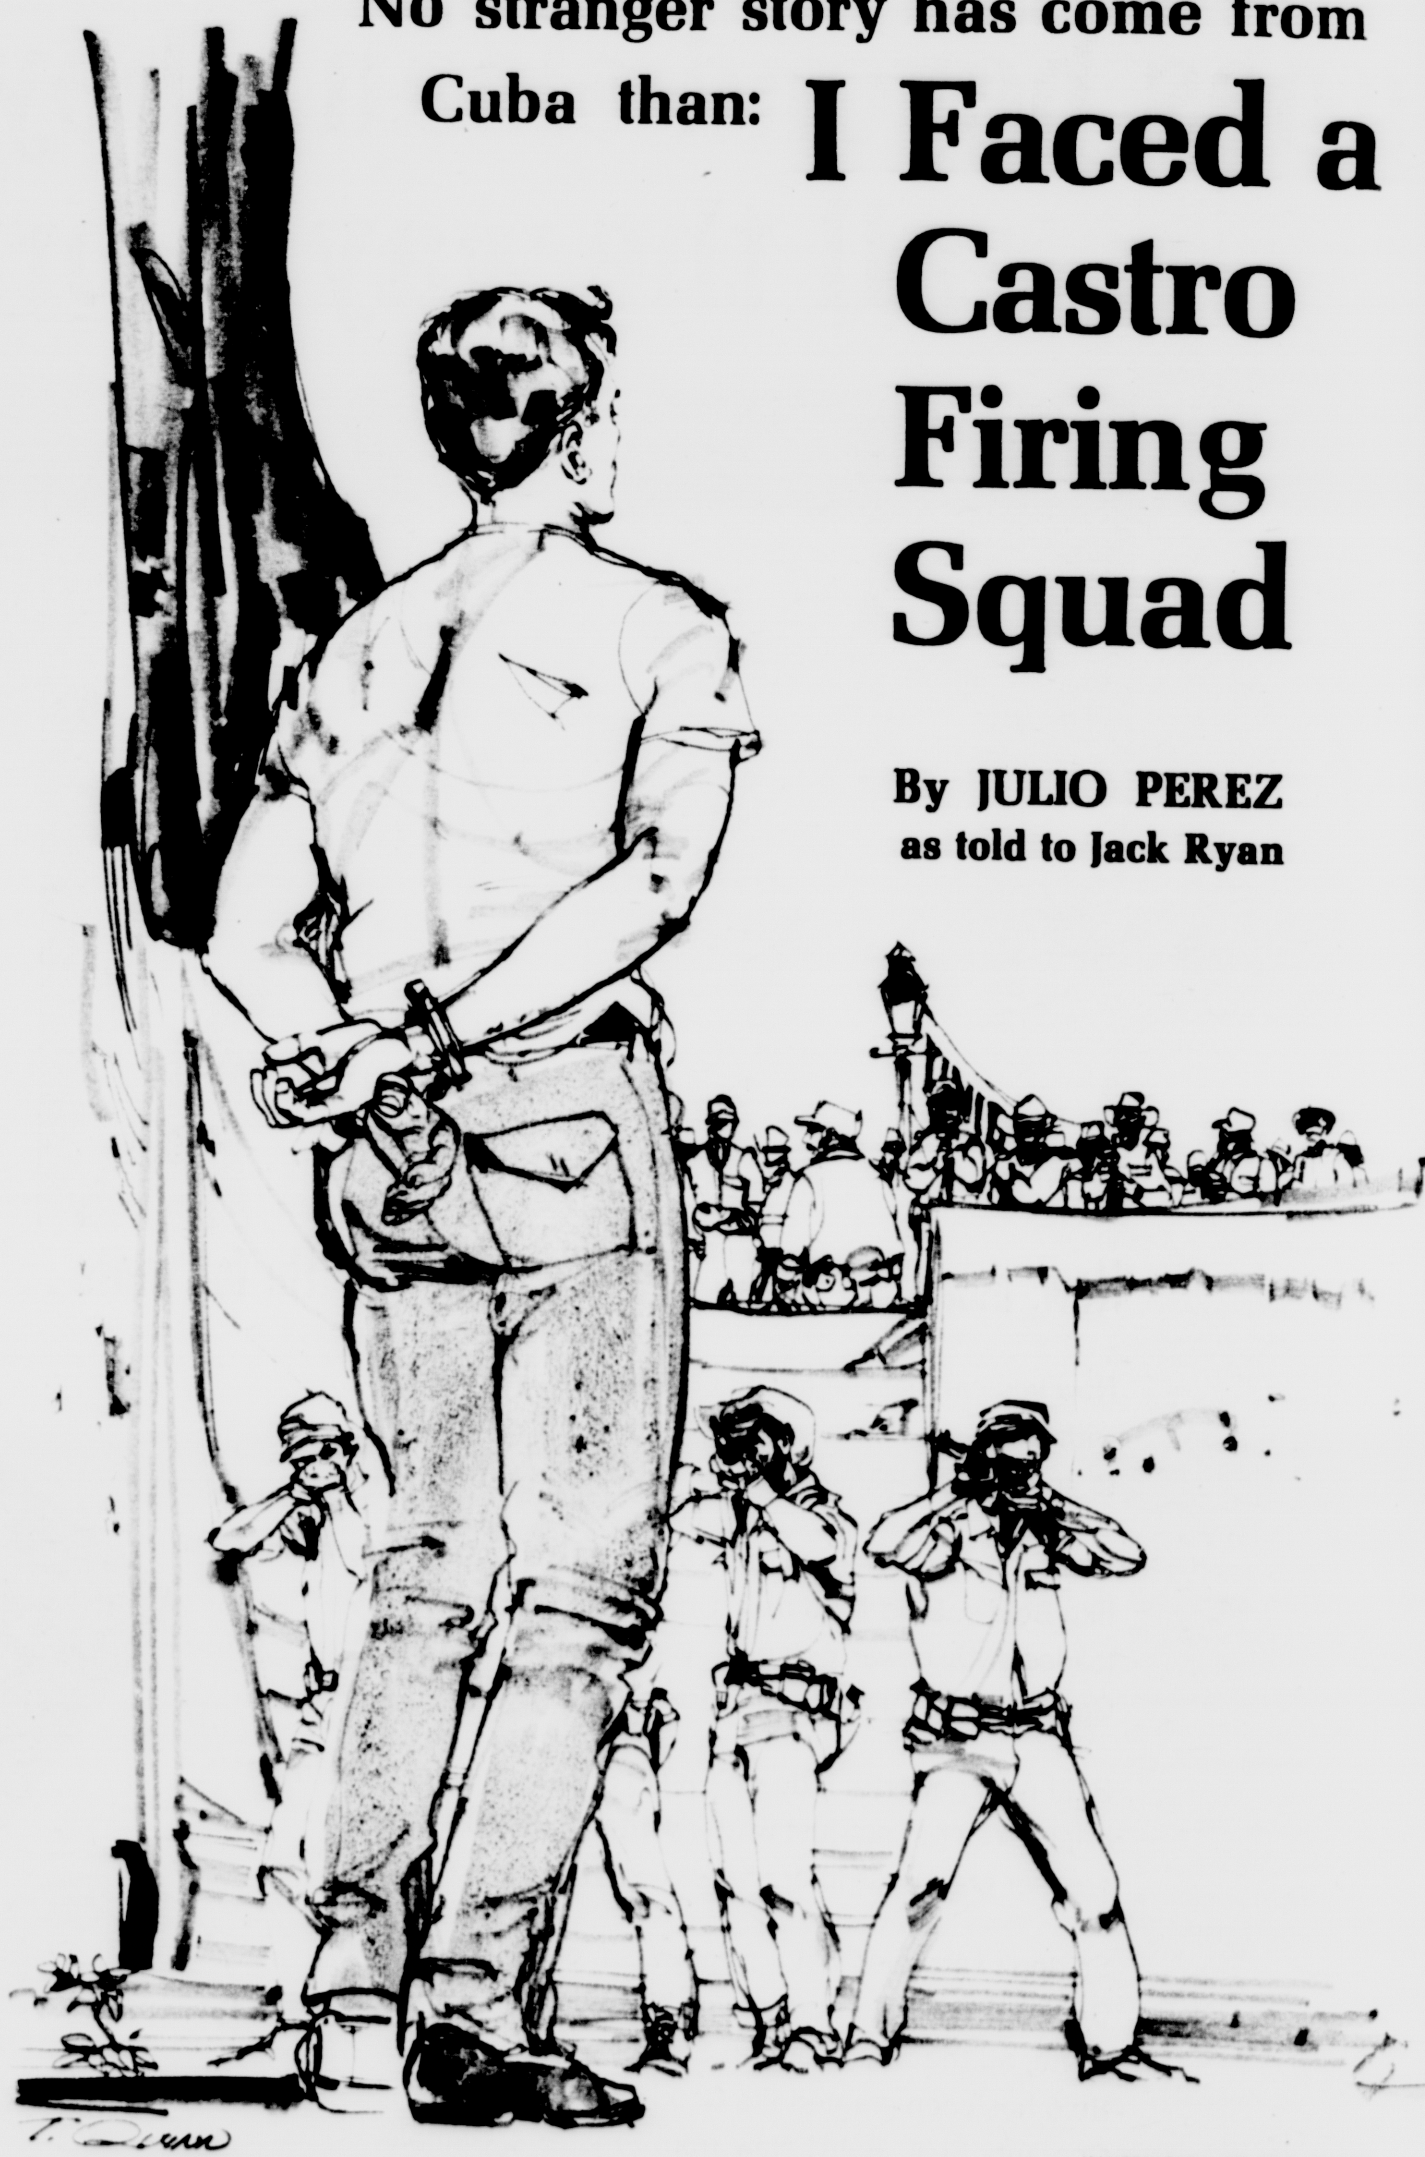

ILLUSTRATION BY TOM QUINN

I WOULD HEAR the shuffling sounds of the guards as they came to my cell to take me before the firing squad. Then I would awake from my fitful sleep and realize I had dreamed the noises.

But at 5 a.m., July 7, 1960, I heard the noises again—and this time it was not a dream.

I could sense the eyes of the other prisoners as guards took positions on each side and marched me outside. No one spoke. In the next two hours I would notice that both victims and executioners had difficulty in speaking.

Handcuffed, I was taken to the officers' mess in La Cabaña Fortress, next to famed Morro Castle in Havana. Standing there beneath banners proclaiming the Castro Revolution was Capt. Moises Sio Wong, a Chinese-Cuban, whose family operated a restaurant near my parents' home. We knew each other, but neither of us made any sign of recognition.

I waited, burning with fever and aching with the beatings I had taken. Twenty-four hours before, two fellow prisoners had been marched out of my cell to the firing squad. When more than a hour passed and we heard nothing, we had thought, They will not kill us after all. It is only a bluff. Then shots echoed from El Foso de los Laureles, and we knew the Communists were not bluffing.

El Foso de los Laureles is a pit in the prison courtyard where the Spaniards executed Cuban patriots in the 19th century. Castro had put it back into use, and already Captain Wong reportedly had killed 200 prisoners there. On two sides are towering rocks, grass, and flowers; on one side, an entrance for the firing squads; and on the fourth side, the stone wall against which the prisoners stand.

At 6:25 an expressionless army captain took over from Wong and led me downstairs to El Foso de los Laureles. "You can cover your eyes if you wish," he said. I couldn't speak, so I shook my head. Fever was making me faint, but I finally managed to whisper: "The handcuffs—take them off." He refused. Three soldiers marched me to the wall and left me there.

How vividly I recall the scene! About 25 soldiers surrounded the firing squad. Eight men made up the squad; seven carried Garand rifles, and one had a carbine with a 30-cartridge magazine. The captain carried a Thompson submachine gun under his arm. At his side was the .45 pistol he would use for the coup de grace.

He shouted orders. "Preeepare . . ." The squad snapped the rifles up. I heard the bolts slam cartridges into the chambers. "Take aimmmm . . ." The rifles steadied on me. I could not close my eyes. There was a long moment—a deliberately cruel long moment.

* * *

My ordeal began in late June when several members of my counterrevolutionary cell were arrested. From that time on, I lived from moment to moment, knowing an informer was in our ranks. But who? And when would he report me? With time, I might escape Cuba, but time ran out on June 30. I entered our apartment and found my wife sitting in the living room in stiff terror. Machine-gun toting members of G-2 (military intelligence) were sitting with her.

"Naval Ensign Julio Perez? Where have you hidden your radio transmitter?" I pretended I didn't know what they were talking about. They searched me, then began on the apartment. The living room, bedroom—and then the kitchen. I didn't dare look at my wife. Concealed inside the toaster was a .38 pistol and a five-watt radio transmitter, 2x3x4 inches. I used the steeples of a church facing Havana harbor as antennae and guided gunrunners past the coast guard to rendezvous points on the north coast. If the transmitter were found, I would die that night.

After two hours, the searchers gave up and took me to G-2 headquarters, which was located in a former bank building. When we arrived, I went to open the car door, and a guard smashed my ribs with his rifle butt. They pushed me to a second-floor vault and slammed the steel door behind me. The air conditioning had been turned on full blast, and I shook with cold. From a loudspeaker, "The 26th of July March," Castro's rallying music, blared deafeningly over and over.

Early in the morning, the guards stripped me to pants and shirt and took me to another room, steamy hot and blinding with light. A Captain Suarez and a lieutenant whose name I never learned began questioning me. "Why were you in Mariel?" This is a coastal town near La Dominica, where, at the time, mysterious construction was under way. I had entered the security zone and photographed the construction, then turned the pictures over to an anti-Castro agent in a clandestine meeting. We thought the construction was for a Russian submarine base; later we learned it was to be a Russian missile site, one of those which forced the American-Soviet confrontation in October, 1962.

"I go to Mariel because it is near the naval academy where I went to school," I replied. I guessed they had only fragmentary information, so far. If I professed ignorance, I still might live.

The interrogators were joined by Ramiro Valdes, chief of G-2. "Perez," he said, "you will tell us about Mariel. Also about the weapons you brought to Havana."

The last part startled me—and told me who the informer was. One night earlier that summer, four of us had taken a navy truck to a coastal rendezvous point, picked up weapons smuggled from outside Cuba, and driven them to the city. Of the four, three were under arrest. The fourth was still free. He was a warrant officer I had trusted but who had been bribed to betray us. "I have nothing to say," I replied.

Captain Suarez snatched a bayonet from a Springfield rifle and lashed my back. "Stand up!" I did, and he punched me in the stomach. I toppled over, unconscious.

It seemed as if it were snowing, a peaceful snow that covered me as softly as a childhood blanket. Only when I distinguished the blaring sound of "The 26th of July March" did I realize I was half-delirious, locked again in the freezing vault. After hours, the door opened. "Are you ready to talk?" a guard asked.

"I have nothing to say. Please, I need water!" He refused. I asked for a chair so I could get off the ice-cold floor. No. The door slammed shut.

I managed to drag myself upright and lean against the wall, which was not so cold. But the guards reappeared and took me again to the steamy-hot, bright room. Suarez went to work. "What about Mariel? Where are the weapons?"

"I have nothing to say." For 10 minutes he punched my body. Blood began rushing from my nose. "Tell us about Mariel, and we will be merciful. If not, the firing squad." But I knew I couldn't deal with Communists. I shook my head, and two soldiers pulled my arms tight behind me. Suarez's fists pounded my chest and abdomen.

Sunday, July 3, I was driven to La Cabaña Fortress with other prisoners and locked in a former officer's room with four others. Three days later the first of our group was executed, and at 6 p.m. that evening a guard opened the door and shouted: "Perez, you are next. Do you want a priest?"

"Let me see my wife!" . . . "There is not time" . . . "Let me phone her!" . . . "No" . . . "My mother then. Somebody must know about me" . . . "There is not time. The priest, Perez?" . . ."Yes!"

The priest came but could not help me reach my family. I scribbled a note to my wife and gave it to a seaman I had known before. His name was Rodriguez. "If you live," I said, "deliver this." I wanted somebody to know about Julio Perez and remember the date he died. Then night came, and I listened to footsteps that were not there until I awoke to reality and death.

The captain's cruel pause ended. "Fiiire!" I saw the flash from the rifles' muzzles and wisps of smoke. The flash was inordinately bright. Nothing happened. For a moment, life seemed suspended, then thoughts ran through my mind, all unjoined. They have missed . . . It's a dream . . . Impossible . . . They will fire again.

Guards half carried me to the captain. As they did, I realized the significance of the bright flashes. The squad had used blanks, which carry a larger powder charge. "Why haven't you killed me?" I asked.

Still expressionless, the captain said: "They don't tell me these things. Ask Wong." Then he prepared for the next prisoner, this time with live bullets.

In his office, Wong chatted as if nothing were unusual. He recalled his family and mine and the good days in Havana. He said I would have food and water—then I would tell him about Mariel. When I entered my cell, the other prisoners drew back in shock; I was indeed a ghost.

By now, however, Rodriguez had broken down. He shouted hysterically to our guard: "Take me. I'll tell all." The guard pulled him away, and we never saw him again.

The next time I saw Wong, he knew all the details of our plot but still not about my pictures at La Dominica or the location of our weapons. He cajoled me, then beat me. But I felt only silence could buy me time.

On July 9 I was summarily turned out of the prison, miles from home with nothing but my pants, shirt, and shoes. "Go home and stay," an officer shouted. "We will see you again, Perez."

I staggered to a post office and borrowed money to telephone my wife. I almost wept. "Come for me. Please, hurry."

Doctors said I had a nervous breakdown and must rest. But how? A passing car or voices from the street brought me bolt upright in bed. Night was worse; I could see the G-2 men as well as hear them. I went to my mother's home because G-2 did not know her address, but a high-placed friend contacted me with news: "A new death list has come out. You are on it. Get out of Cuba now—or never."

Until I obtained papers, I had to hide. I contacted a former army sergeant on Castro's death list who seemingly had vanished in February, 1959, and he agreed to share his hideout with me. At dusk, he brought me to a remote section of the National Cemetery where iron railings of the fence had been pulled apart. We slipped into the deserted graveyard and headed for a mausoleum. The sergeant unlocked the heavy door, and we entered the crypt.

"Those stairs," said the sergeant, "lead to another burial vault. Go down there." And so for the next six nights I slept with the dead.

By this time, police already had battered down the door of my apartment, only to find it abandoned. A general alarm went out for me and six others, yet each afternoon the sergeant and I would mingle with funeral groups and leave the cemetery with them undetected. I obtained a U. S. visa and a forged passport without much trouble, but most important was an exit permit, without which I could not board a plane.

In 1950 I had been on a frigate with a sailor you Americans would call an "operator" or "wheeler-dealer." This opportunist was now a police officer for Castro, but I knew he was no Communist, only a conniver. I asked him for a permit. Obviously he enjoyed seeing his former officer asking favors. "For you, certainly," he said. "For old times' sake—and $200."

On Saturday, Aug. 13, my wife and I were at the airport, waiting for the 4 p.m. flight to Miami. My papers, including the precious yellow exit card, were made out to Carlos Perez y Perez—this being such a common Cuban name, I thought it best to keep it.

But an officious inspector for G-2 became suspicious. "A Julio Perez y Perez is on my list. Is that you?" I swore it wasn't. "We must be sure. Come with me while I phone headquarters."

Somehow my wife and I remained unshaken, even while being searched. Four o'clock came and passed, but the airport inspector could not get any information from headquarters over his radio-telephone. The airline pilot's impatience mounted, but he refused to leave without us. I must explain that in those days Castro's G-2 was headed by semiliterate country folk, totally confused by their new power. Nowadays Czechoslovakian intelligence chiefs command G-2, and I am sure I would not be alive now if they had been in control that fateful Saturday.

By 7:45 p.m. we were still stalled. The pilot angrily demanded that the agent release us. I protested I was Carlos Perez. The harassed agent fretted about headquarters' inefficiency. "I will call them again," he said, reddened with embarrassment over the Revolution's inability to check a simple fact. This time nobody at headquarters even bothered to answer his call.

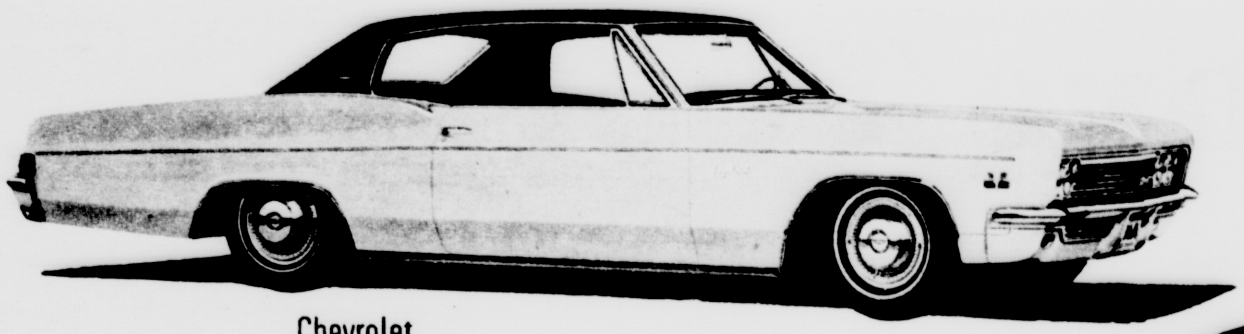

"Bah!" he shouted, hanging up. "I don't care whether you're Julio or Carlos. Get out!" We rushed to the exit, and he called out: "Good luck, whoever you are."

I had been calm for the four hours we waited for a message from G-2 that would signal my death. Now I looked out the plane window, saw the lights of Havana flickering below us, and became violently ill. A woman shouted for my wife, who had just left her seat next to me.

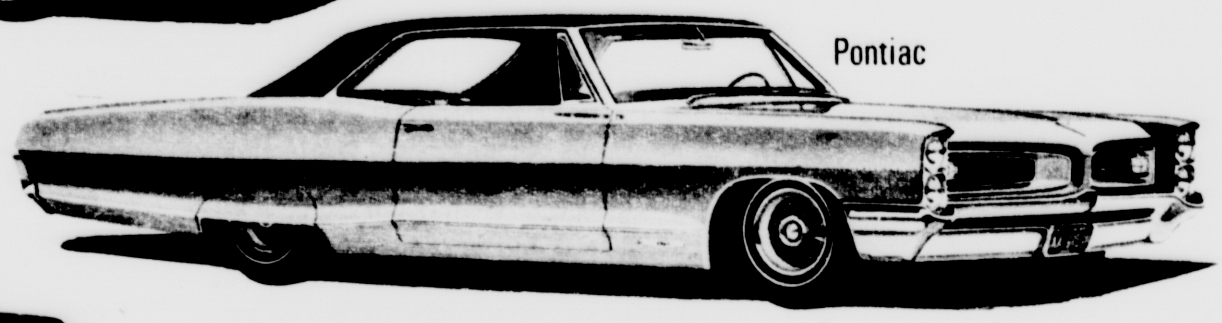

The old fears and nightmares flooded over me again, but I heard my wife say:

"It is all right now, Julio. We are free." ◆

Bringing Up Baby®

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

It's amazing how many things a newborn can do. During the first week he can lift his chin, yawn, sneeze, and hiccough. By the end of the first month . . . little ears are alert to sounds, little eyes can follow light. When offered a finger, a dainty hand will grasp with a vise-like grip. While all these antics are reflex actions, they're forerunners to voluntary actions. As the central nervous system develops and muscle control sets in, your baby will begin to do things with intent and purpose.

Good starting point. Rice cereal is often recommended as the starting cereal because it's a single-grain cereal and well-tolerated by babies. Gerber Rice Cereal is especially desirable because it's pleasantly mild and has a special nutritional extra. It's the only baby rice cereal which contains rice polishings . . . a natural source of B-complex vitamins. (The polishings also add to the palatability of the cereal.) Like all Gerber Cereals, it is enriched with iron (a factor in blood-building) and important B-vitamins to aid appetite and growth.

Wall saver. Decorative way to protect the nursery wall from baby-bath splashes: place a sizeable panel of gay, plastic-coated wallpaper behind baby's bath table. Spares the wall and baby will enjoy looking at a colorful print.

Baby saver. Easy way to prevent stinging eyes at shampoo time: rub a bit of cold cream above baby's eyebrows. Wonderful how it sidetracks suds . . . keeps them from trickling into sparkling eyes.

Growth progress depends on an adequate supply of protein. Nine Gerber Strained Meats provide satisfying ways to give your baby growth-promoting protein. Made from special cuts carefully selected by Armour, they're processed to extra-smooth, nicely moist perfection. Low in fat, they're easy to digest. High in savory flavor, they're relished by babies with lip-smacking zest. Gerber® Baby Foods, Box 72, Fremont, Mich.

A TOWN BESIEGED BY BIRDS

Like a black plague, millions of squawking birds invade a Missouri town each November

By CHARLES and BONNIE REMSBERG

VISITORS DON'T soon forget their first day in the Missouri farming town of Dexter.

As soon as the sun comes up, clouds of squawking blackbirds rise from the nearby woods and fill the morning sky. They fan out from their scrub-timber roost like the spokes of a great wheel, stretching 40 miles over the countryside in a relentless search for food. They are so thick at times that they blot out the sun. Conservation agents estimate they are 8 million strong—one of the strangest community plagues on record.

Such awesome flights are a daily spectacle in Dexter. But for the town's 5,000 residents and the farmers in the surrounding territory, they long ago ceased to be a source of fascination.

Dexter's black swarms of birds destroy valuable farm crops, attack livestock, and have created a disease menace that could break into an epidemic. In many respects they are turning the country town into a real-life version of the bird-beleaguered village in Alfred Hitchcock's movie chiller, "The Birds."

Winter bird roosts are dotted throughout the Lower Midwest, but for the last seven years a 20-acre tract of underbrush and oak timber on the southern limits of Dexter has attracted more migratory birds than any other site. And each year the number increases.

At the first hint of winter, grackles, cow birds, red-winged blackbirds, starlings, and rice birds begin flocking into the roost from their summer nesting grounds in Canada and the Upper Midwest. By mid-November, the flocks crowd so closely into the trees that they break off the limbs.

"Even blocks away, the noise is so intense it sounds like you're in the middle of a beehive," says conservation agent Don May. And when the wind blows toward town, the odor can be overwhelming.

It's outside the roost, however, that they wreak their greatest damage.

Each bird needs an estimated four ounces of food a day, and they fly out every morning to steal much of this from the lush corn, wheat, bean, and rice fields around Dexter. Some angry farmers stand guard over their fields with shotguns at harvest time; others have tried buzzing low in private airplanes to scare the birds away—but with little success.

"They literally cover up a rice field," May explains. "And if something scares them, they just burrow down in the rice and keep right on feeding. They took one farmer for $3,000 worth of grain in a single crop."

Sometimes when farmers are planting corn, droves of the birds follow along behind and dig the kernels out of the ground. According to Dexter's mayor, Melvin Gainer, they consume about $1,000 worth of grain per 100 acres of farm land.

Barnyard losses run high, too. One farmer parked a half-ton truckload of corn in a shed, planning to have it shelled at a mill the next day. During an eight-hour period, when he was busy elsewhere, the birds swarmed over it. When he returned, he found only bare cobs.

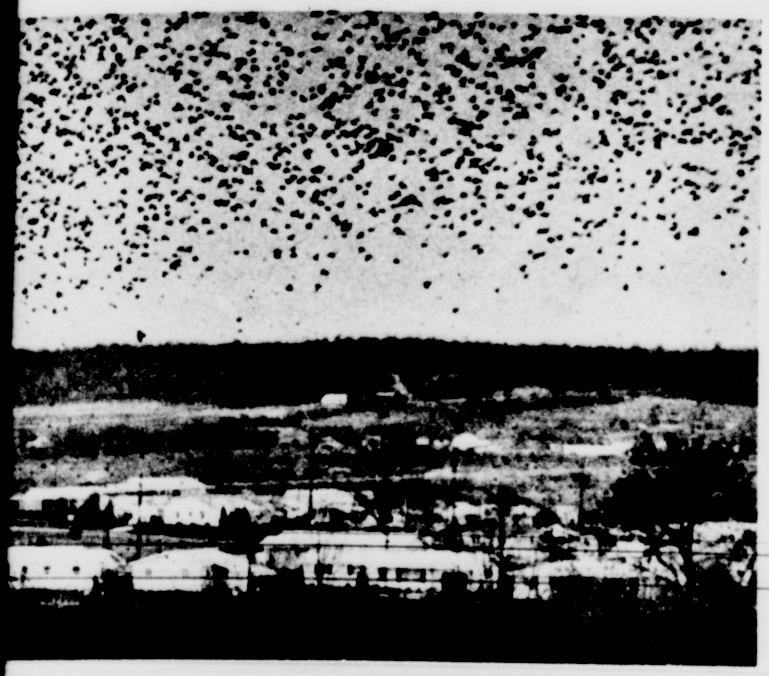

Often the birds perch in thick masses on livestock feeders and attack pigs, chickens, and cattle, pecking the animals savagely to get at the grain.

The greatest threat, however, is disease. Active starling roosts are one of two known sources (the other is old chicken houses) of a fungus that causes histoplasmosis, a sometimes-fatal disease resembling tuberculosis. Tests by the U.S. Public Health Service have shown the fungus to be present in 17 out of 31 samples taken from the six-inch carpet of droppings in the roost.

Last spring, other tests were run on Dexter school children. According to Dr. S. B. Beecher, a state health physician, they revealed that an abnormally high percentage of the youngsters have been infected by the fungus at some time in their lives. Among high-school students, for example, 66 percent tested positive.

"In most instances, the disease was probably so mild they weren't even aware of it or at worst thought it was flu," Dr. Beecher explains. "But it can be extremely dangerous, and it seems significant that the highest percentage of positive results appeared among students of the schools closest to the bird roost."

Mayor Gainer says seven known cases of histoplasmosis have been pinpointed in Dexter proper, with another 22 in outlying areas. One victim, five-year-old Marty Averette, whose home lies below a flight path of the birds, has been stricken since last January.

"There is no cure for it except rest," explains his father. "We hope he'll outgrow it eventually, but it's still sapping all his energy. He'll lie down in the middle of the day and sleep for three or four hours. Before he got sick, you used to have to tie him in bed to keep him there. The doctors say they don't know what the outcome will be."

More than 2,000 letters have poured into Dexter suggesting ways the town might say bye-bye to the blackbirds for good. One St. Louis correspondent proposed that officials feed the birds mash from a brewery. "When they're good and drunk, you can pick 'em up and haul 'em off," he explained.

More seriously, others have proposed bulldozing or dynamiting the trees to eliminate the inviting roosting spot. Officials may try bulldozing this winter, but Dr. Beecher warns that if the site is not thoroughly sprayed with a germ killer, the machinery could force great quantities of the histoplasmosis fungus into the air and touch off a widespread epidemic.

Even with safeguards, the job may be futile. Veterinarian Leonard Palmer points out that if the birds are driven out of their present roost, they'll simply shift to another suitable spot nearby. Some persons fear they may even invade downtown Dexter.

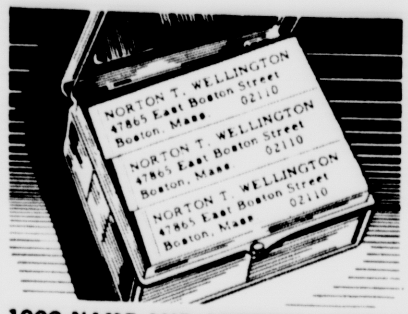

Dr. E. R. Price, an expert with the Missouri health department, believes the only effective attack is to eliminate the birds themselves. Poison is considered risky because of its potential effect on other animals and humans, but Dr. Price has another imaginative scheme in mind.

"In cold weather, you could set up big flood lights near the roost and use fire hoses with spray nozzles to create a thick mist in front of them," he explains. "The birds will instinctively fly toward the lights, and if the water has been mixed with some detergent it will penetrate their feathers. Soon they'll freeze to death."

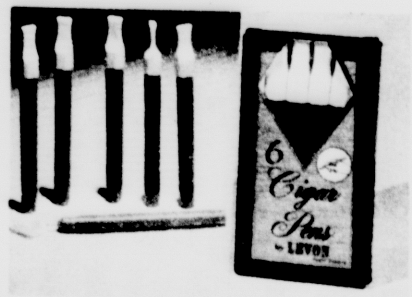

Nature lovers have objected to this plan as cruel, however. More important, Dexter, at this writing, has not found enough money to finance any extensive bird-removal program.

"Unless something happens pretty quick, it looks as if we're stuck with them again until spring," Mayor Gainer admits. "And next fall, I suppose they'll be back again—maybe even more of them."

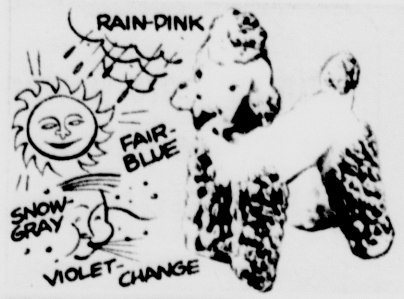

Mayor Gainer looked up grimly at the clouds of chattering birds circling over Dexter. "They seem to like it here," he said. ◆

FURS—

NO FURRED animal is unpopular these days. Fur designers are combing the reaches of the globe for an astounding variety of pelts to wrap women in. The fact is: this season you might need a score card to identify such exotic but appealing pelts as guanaco, baby seal, lynx, fitch, and French rabbit (the last, a veritable chameleon that's destined to be the big sleeper of the year).

In current collections, such fur as rabbit comes in a surprising range of colors. But look for white; the pale, creamy colors; and especially brown—neutral shades which women love—to gain in popularity this season.

When browsing for furs, women may also come upon a new phenomenon, the "fur boutique," which is sprouting beautiful wings in many department stores across the country. It's usually decorated whimsically, offers furs at moderate prices, and is situated away from the store's cloistered—and often forbidding—blue-lit fur salon. That's good news for women who may have felt they had to look like the Duchess of Windsor (or be her) to make a fur purchase.

The furs shown here—for which you needn't trade the family heirloom—are all under $500.

Anxietyville's Self-Confident Citizen

IN HOLLYWOOD, where there are almost as many psychiatrists as actors and job anxiety is an emotional malady of epidemic proportions, Keir Dullea (pronounced Keer Du-lay) is the exception—a reasonably well-adjusted, mature young actor who is willing to take chances with his career.

Keir told me recently: "After my first movie job as a psychopathic killer in 'The Hoodlum Priest,' I was so hot that four studios were bidding to put me under long-term contract. But they didn't offer me any specific properties, so I turned them all down for a play with Rod Steiger that never even got to Broadway.

"By the time it folded, I was so cold I couldn't get any film work. But I had no regrets. An actor has to take chances. I don't knock security, but I have enough faith in myself to be choosy about films."

Ironically, Keir, who comes across as a thoughtful, shrewd young man, has made a specialty of playing emotionally disturbed characters—first in "The Hoodlum Priest" and then in "David and Lisa" and "The Thin Red Line."

He also has a reputation for excellent acting, as you will be able to judge in his forthcoming "Madame X" and "Bunny Lake Is Missing." Judging by the rushes I've seen of the latter, he is holding his own quite well against one of the world's most distinguished actors, Sir Laurence Olivier.

Keir says he became interested in acting even before he went to school. "My mother used to read Shakespeare to me every night until I fell asleep—and if that doesn't turn you into an actor, nothing will."

Keir was born 29 years ago in Cleveland and grew up in New York. He attended a variety of schools, including the Grace Church School, where he smuggled pocket editions of Shakespeare into study hall, and Rutgers University in New Jersey—from which he suddenly took off in the middle of the night to hitchhike to San Francisco!

Hollywood has typed Keir Dullea as a player of emotionally disturbed roles—but off-screen, he's one of the movie colony's most mature and dedicated performers

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

"I was 16. I ran away because I wanted to make up my mind about my future without the influence of anyone I knew," he says. "I figured that the farther away I got, the clearer my mind would be. I had $50 on me, which I'd saved up mostly from peddling ice cream from a pushcart on New York's Lower East Side during my summer vacation."

When Keir finally reached San Francisco, he had less than a dollar. He slept on park benches until he got a job as a carpenter.

"After one year as a carpenter," he explained, "I had saved enough money to attend San Francisco State College, where I majored in drama and quickly discovered this was what I loved. Then I went back to New York."

For the next few years, Keir studied and played in summer stock, tv, and off-Broadway. Then a Hollywood agent spotted him in a tv soap opera and got him his first movie role.

Keir met his wife Margo in New York, where she also was acting. They were married in a rather unusual ceremony on a riverboat in St. Louis the day before he began his first film.

"It wasn't my kind of wedding," Keir told me the evening I had dinner with his wife and him. "It was all for publicity. The producer had reporters there, and we had to go through the ceremony three times. I would never do that again."

"And you better not!" said his pretty wife.

Today, Keir's work keeps him on the move—he has made more than 20 trips to Hollywood and six to Europe in the last few years—but the Dulleas remain confirmed New Yorkers. Their charming, high-ceilinged triplex apartment in Manhattan was for many years the home of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

"Someday, when we have children, we may want to move to California, but right now we are happy where we are," Margo insisted.

One of Keir's favorite pastimes is doing the Frug, Swim, and Jerk at the many discothèques that dot New York. "It's like getting a free psychiatric treatment," he told me.

For additional exercise, Keir runs a mile every day, rides, and swims. On a recent trip to Ireland, he cycled 40 miles a day during a two-week search through County Cork to find the birthplace of his forebears. "I didn't find it," he says, "but I sure had a lot of sore muscles when it was all over."

Keir also continues to practice carpentry every chance he gets. Asked why, he said with a grin, "It's something to fall back on if my career goes sour."

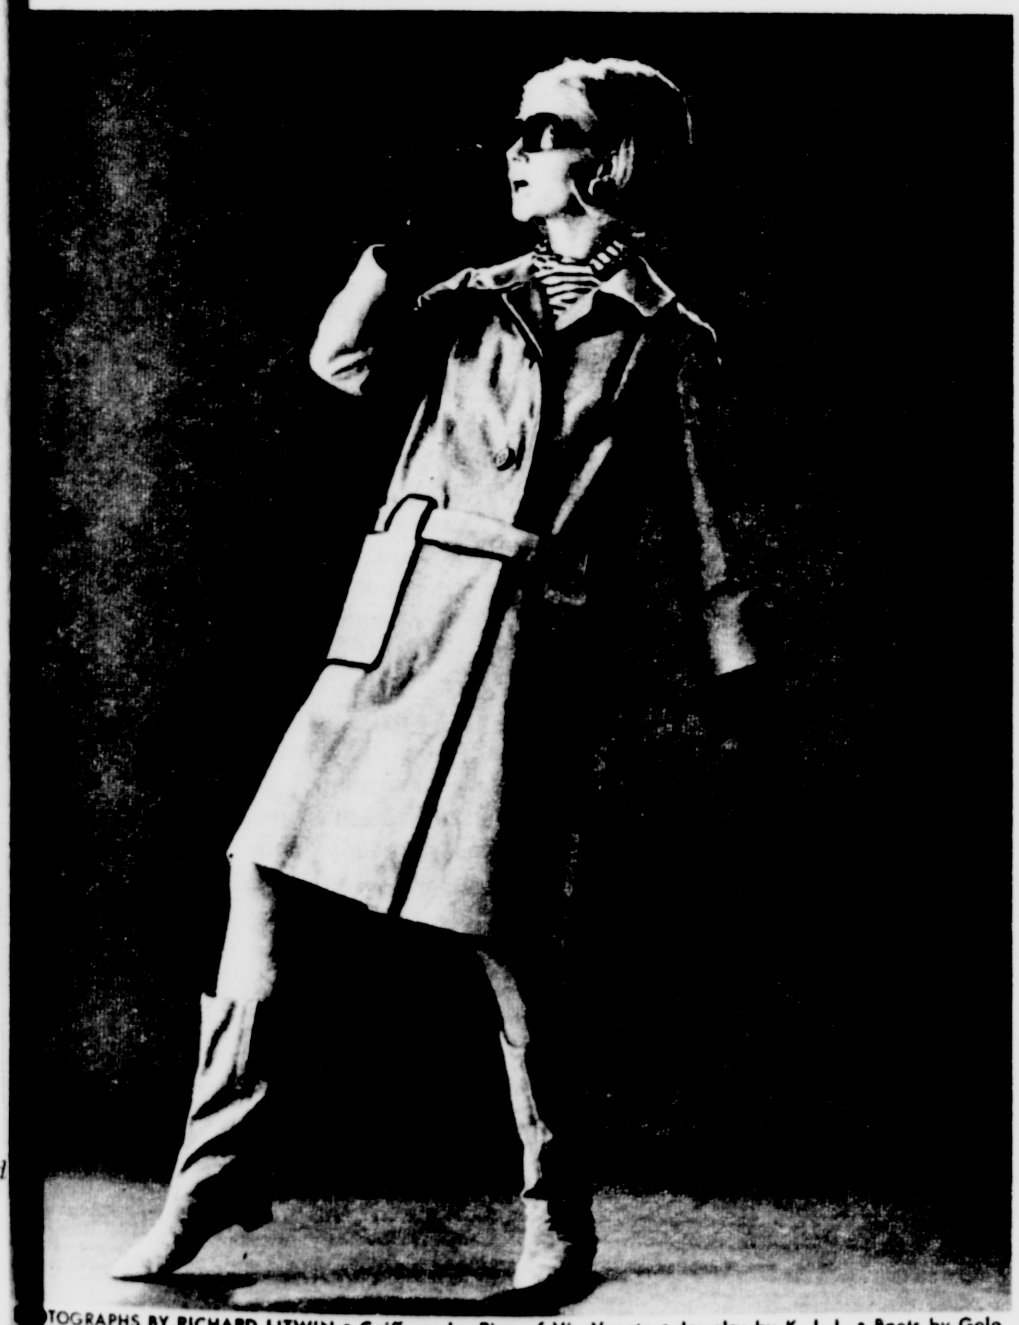

I doubt the carpenters' union will ever get this ex-member back. ◆

Test your talent

WIN ONE OF THREE $595.00 COMMERCIAL ART SCHOLARSHIPS PLUS CASH PRIZES

For many years Art Instruction Schools has conducted art talent contests. These contests helped to uncover new talent for the many fields of commercial art. Hundreds, who are successful commercial artists today, started their exciting careers by sketching the famous "draw-me" heads. With these triplet drawings our professional artists can evaluate the trainable talent you may have.

As you try each of these drawings you'll probably find Laura the easiest to draw because she is a simple draw-me type profile. The sketch of Louise is "full-face"; the planes of her face are equal and symmetrical. Linda may be the most difficult for you to draw. Hers is a "three-quarters profile", using perspective to give the illusion of depth. Even if you feel you could only draw Laura, we can train you to draw the others.

Because of the varying degrees of difficulty of each of the heads your drawings of the triplets will be individually judged as three separate contests, cash awards plus scholarship prizes go to the winner of each contest: $25 for Laura, $50 for Louise, and $75 for Linda.

LINDA

LOUISE

Draw one or "triple your fun" and draw all of the triplets. Make your drawings, in pencil, larger or smaller than those above. If you win one of three commercial art scholarships you'll receive a complete home study course in advertising art, illustrating, cartooning or painting. You'll be taught by professional artists from America's largest home study art school, Art Instruction Schools. Even those who do not win will receive an honest professional appraisal of their talents. Entries for these three contests must be in before December 31, 1965. None can be returned. Our students and professional artists are not eligible. Start your drawings now; mail your entry today.
